What They Will Do—

CALVIN COOLIDGE is in New York City. Reporters say he is considering "a job," preferably some executive position.

Every executive position worth while means entering the employ of a corporation.

It should not be necessary for a man who has been President of the United States to look for any job or go to work for any corporation.

Election to the presidency should entitle a man at the end of his term to a pension, sufficient to make any other job unnecessary for the rest of the man's life, a pension certainly not less than $50,000, and preferably the full amount of the President's pay.

The people owe this not only to the presidency, but to their own self-respect.

Allons, "Let us go," was the last word uttered by Marshal Foch. It is the first word of the French national hymn that he heard so often, the hymn to which the revolutionary soldiers marched from the south of France into Paris. "Allons enfants de la patrie," etc.

The last words of great men, piously collected, have little value. The great men probably did not know what they were saying. Mehr Licht, "more light," were the last words of Goethe.

Frederick the Great's last words are supposed to be tete d'armee, "head of the army." He often spoke French in preference to German.

Pitt, whose genius kept Napoleon out of England, said as he died: "My country, how I leave thee." He was worried about the future.

What a man does while he lives is more important than what he says when he dies.

German scientists discover that the great Amazon, so wide at the mouth that boats on it go out of sight of land, connects with the River La Plata, formerly the greatest river chain on earth. That will interest thousands who, as boys, read Kingsley's "Westward Ho" and lived in imagination on the shores of the Orinoco.

Elihu Root, great lawyer, says the World Court is now an almost continuous tribunal. The statement is interesting, and you may add to it, that the things that continuous World Court would do to the United States if Uncle Sam ever submitted himself to its rulings would be continuous and quite expensive.

However, the "right people," which means big people, including international financiers, want the United States in the World Court in order that investments made recklessly abroad may be protected by court decision and backed by United States credit.

For that good reason the United States probably will get into the World Court in spite of Senator Borah and others who think George Washington was right. George Washington did not know high finance.

German health resorts refuse to admit poor Trotsky, once ruler of the Russian army, now exiled by the Russian government. Trotsky, ill, would like to take the German "waters." Owners of various "spas" say they don't want Trotsky, because he would drive away their richest customers, especially Americans.

What Trotsky would say about Marx Capitallamus now would be emphatic.

A Russian murderer, "head of the Volga pirates," recalling the ancient Tartars, with his small black eyes and active body, on trial for 200 crimes, adds proverbs to his boasting.

His daughter "was a nuisance," so he killed her.

"You cannot make a good plank from rotten wood."

He killed his uncle. "Buried men cannot bear witness, so I shot him with his wife and lodger."

After he killed his daughter, his wife called him a murderer "so I threw her into the Volga, because flowing streams wash away sorrow."

His second wife "knew too much. I killed her because in the grave all knowledge ends."

All knowledge will soon end for this Volga pirate, "Kuznetsof, soon to face a firing squad."

President Hoover will be asked by Police Commissioner Whalen, of New York, only a short time in office, but with much knowledge of criminals, for "legislation to prevent criminals purchasing pistols." Commissioner Whalen says:

"Criminals are cowards, every one of them, relying on guns to attack women, children and defenseless men. Without guns they would be in constant fear."

HURLEY ON FIN. COM. GRILL

Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the Boston Board of Street Commissioners before the Finance Commission today defended the city's payment of $1,750,000 for the land at 40 State st., which was taken for the widening of Exchange st.

He asserted that he not only wrote to Mayor Nichols, urging the land-taking, as the commission had previously brought out at the hearing, but also spoke to the mayor about it.

Chairman Hurley said he knew

FORMER WIFE OF EX-SENATOR DRAPER TO WED SALESMAN

Mrs. Ruth Carroll Draper, former wife of ex-Senator Eben S. Draper of Boston and Hopedale, is about to essay matrimony again—with a plain business man as her partner.

Reports from the New York city license bureau today made public the filing of marriage intentions by Mrs. Draper and Hamlet B. Sharp, 34, a salesman.

Mrs. Draper's present address was given as the Hotel San Carlo, New York. Sharp lives on Madison ave., New York.

Former Senator Draper, interviewed at his Hopedale home today, bore with equanimity the news of his ex-wife's new engagement.

"I'm not interested," he said. "I don't know the man. Never heard of him. The affair is no concern of mine."

The former Massachusetts senator has already made a second marital match.

He married the former Miss Hasen Archibald of Seattle in No-

ROUND UP THREE YOUNG MEN AFTER WATERTOWN 'BREAK'

After a melodramatic series of cold gray dawn encounters between suspected burglars, terrified house-holders, and bewildered Watertown police, three young men, all of good families, were arrested today at their respective homes on charges of breaking and entering.

Climax to the odd happenings of the early morning came when one of the accused trio, a Winchester youth claiming to be a student at the Suffolk Law School, came downstairs in his pajamas to meet the arresting officers and vainly brought with him a bulky legal volume to prove that he couldn't be taken into custody without a warrant.

The three prisoners were Melvin von Rosevitz, the "law student," 27, of Church st., Winchester; Arthur V. King, 23, of Gorham rd., Belmont, employe of a Boston banking firm, and Ellis H. Gorton, 27, of Almont st., Medford, a real estate operator.

STREET BOARD HEAD DEFENDS $1,750,000 EXCHANGE ST. DEAL of various petitions to the Legislature for authorization for the city to widen Exchange st.

"Did it ever occur to you that the legislative activities may have been hints to the city to take the property?" he was asked.

"Yes, it occurred to me," replied Barley.

"Well, did ot ever occur to you that the application for razing the building at 40 State st. might have been another hint to the city?"

"No, I knew we would save the city at least $165,000."

Regarding his talk with the mayor, Hurley said:

"I told him this was the last opportunity the city had to do anything about the widening, and urged him to help put the project across.

"I told him that we would never be able to accomplish it, if a $3,000,000 office building went up there. He was in sympathy with the idea."

O'MALLEY HEARD

The hearing started over a half hour late because of a conference by members of the Finance Commission in their rooms adjoining the hearing room.

The first witness was Walter J. O'Malley, chief conveyancer for the city of Boston, and assistant corporation counsel.

He was asked if F. W. Harrington, conveyancer who testified yesterday, was regularly employed by the city. He said Harrington reported at the office some years ago but was not on the payroll, being paid piece work. Witness thought he was placed there by the head of the board.

O'Malley said he sometimes accepted the abstract of a reputable conveyancing firm and would attach his report in investigating the title, to save time, but that this was rarely done as he preferred a certificate to an abstract.

Q. (By McCarthy)—This is a sound custom and the best custom, isn't it?" A.—Yes, but there are times when we might have to change it, although I prefer a certificate personally. However, in the event of hurry we sometimes take the abstract of a reliable firm.

Q. (By Dowling)—Did you have anything to do with the property 40144 State st? A.—The witness hesitated, and said: "I didn't do anything on that place. That was all done by Mr. Harrington."

WOULD SAVE TIME

Q.—Mr. Harrington testified that he took the abstract of Rackeman and Brewster of 1905 and had Miss O'Brien make out the abstract up to 1928. Do you think that was a safe method when $1,750,000 of the city's money was involved to take an abstract? A.—Well, it might be. Circumstances might alter the case in the event of hurry. I can recall a case where we took an abstract from Samuel Harris, but I personally very seldom did it. Of course, an abstract in the State st. case would save a lot of work and time covering 20 years. Rackeman and Brewster is one of the best-known and most-reliable firms.

Q.—Would you, under those circumstances, have accepted an abstract rather than a certificate? A.—I might have. All careful conveyancers would prefer a certificate as a general rule.

Q.—By Com. Lane: Knowing your reputation for care and precaution, Mr. O'Malley, and not wishing to question that, I would like to ask you if it was not your custom, as you explained it, to carefully check up yourself even after an abstract was submitted to you when such abstracts were used as a short cut? A.—Yes.

Chairman Hurley of the street commissioners was the next witness.

Q.—How many years has this Exchange st. widening been brought before the legislature?

A.—Looking up the records I find that as far back as 1874 there was agitation in the legislature.

Q.—What did you hear about the widening in the fall of 1928? A.—I heard rumors about the board was intensely interested for the reason that the board favored the widening.

Q.—Notwithstanding the opposition over 40 years? A.—Yes. My opinion is the widening was proper.

Q.—Do you feel it your duty to disregard the wishes of the people of Boston and follow your own personal opinion? A.—If you can show me that the people did not desire this widening. I never heard any opposition.

Q.—When no one appeared at the hearing, what did you do to acquaint yourself with public opinion on the matter? A.—I think the people who knew of it and those who didn't know, left the matter to me. That was my job.

TALK WITH MAYOR

Referring to the letter in which Hurley called the attention of Mayor Nichols to an application for razing the Union building, at 40 State st., and in which he urged the Mayor to take the property for widening, McCarthy asked:

Q.—Did you talk to the mayor before you sent this letter? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the conversation? A.—I told him this was the last opportunity the city had to do anything about the widening, and urged him to help put the widening project across. I told him that we would never be able to accomplish it, if a $2,000,000 office building went up there. He was in sympathy with the idea.

Q.—How many years has this Exchange st. widening been brought before the legislature?

A.—Looking up the records I find that as far back as 1874 there was agitation in the legislature.

Q.—What did you hear about the widening in the fall of 1928? A.—I heard rumors about the board was intensely interested for the reason that the board favored the widening.

Street Commissioner O'Callaghan was among the spectators and when Chairman Hurley asked him for the figures, he said: They may be in my desk. I used them at legislative hearings.

Q. (by McCarthy)—Did it ever occur to you that the legislative activities may have been hints to the city to take the property? A.—Yes, it occurred to me.

Q.—Did it occur to you that the application for razing the building might have been another hint to the city? A.—No, I knew we'd save the city at least $165,000.

Q.—Did he know what he was talking about? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you consider him competent. A.—Yes, very

Q.—Would you be surprised to learn the plans cost only $18,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you could have found out that then just as well as now, couldn't you? A.—I suppose so, but it was not my duty.

Q.—And you didn't find out then? A.—No.

LEVEE BREAKS ON MISSISSIPPI

breaks that have already occurred, in the Indian Graves section, fully 20,000 acres of grain soil are submerged today.

According to officials, another 50,000 acres of finest farm lands are in imminent peril from the flood waters. Fully 500 homes have already been hit by the deluge, their occupants fleeing to nearby towns and cities for refuge.

Levees over a distance north of here are carrying their limit of water pressure today, apparently, judging from official reports.

Thousands of laborers are working, striving to add to the strength of the levees.

Most of the flooded farms were planted with crops and the loss from the swirling water is expected to amount to thousands of dollars. The break was below the Rock Creek levee, but little hope was held that the Rock Creek levee would last long now with churning water all around it.

While the flood was spreading north of the city, districts south and west were feeling the benefit. When the levee gave way, it released so much water that the river stage at Quincy fell four inches and relieved a tense situation there.

Residents had moved out of the South Quincy Gardens, a new home site community, but the flood breaking north of the city has saved the south from similar peril.

MEXICANS IN FURIOUS BATTLE

on the west coast.

The rebel attack on the city began during the night and, according to latest reports, is still being vigorously pushed on all sides of the town.

The rebel army, led by Gen. Roberto Cruz, numbers 8000 men. The federal force stubbornly defending the city is placed at 2500 men.

Heavy casualties have marked the battle on both sides, it is reported. The federals, driven back from their front line trenches far beyond the city limits, are making a final stand in the city itself.

The attacking rebels are said to have swept toward the besieged city in massed waves, many being killed under the withering fire of machine guns. Their overwhelming numbers are expected to result in complete capture of the city before the day ends.

Gen. Carrillo, federal commander defending the city, is reported to have wired Mexico City for immediate aid. Unless his position is relieved it is believed Carrillo will be forced to surrender.

A powerful force of 6000 men has been sent to reinforce the federals at Mazatlan by Gen. Elias Calles, commander-in-chief of the main Government army in the east but this force cannot reach the falling seaport for several days.

from below reported discovery of five additional bodies today.

Entombed in the explosion-wrecked mine for more than 24 hours, a miner named Althouse was rescued alive today. He was carried out on a stretcher by a rescue crew.

The rescuers found him almost two miles back from the main slope mouth. He was conscious, and as he reached the surface, his eyes wide open, he gazed about at the crowds near the mine mouth. He was rushed to an emergency hospital.

Mine officials explained it was not known how many of the men listed as unaccounted for were in the mine.

With rescue crews battling through the debris 7000 feet from the entrance to the mine, hope was revived this morning that some of the entombed workers still were alive.

Although it was much colder today, women and children who gave up their vigil at the pit mouth late last night reappeared at the scene at dawn, hoping against hope that their breadwinners escaped the horrors of the catastrophe. Fog blotted out part of the landscape.

The federal government joined the investigating bodies when Daniel Harrington, chief engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines, Washington, came to the mining settlement to get first-hand information on the blast.

5 FILES, 2 MILES DEEP WAIT TO ENTER HOUSE

Paris, March 22 (AP)—Enclosed in a coffin draped with the flag of France, the body of Marshal Foch reposed under a silver crucifix in the mortuary chamber of his house.

The line of thousands of people who had been waiting to pay last reverence began to file past the now closed coffin. When the doors of the Foch residence were opened this line, five files wide, extended more than a quarter of a mile along the sidewalks of the Rue de Grenelle and became longer each minute.

SIMILE MORTUARY.

Traffic was diverted from the street which was overflowing with French women, Frenchmen and foreigners all anxious to pay a modest farewell homage to the great soldier who is no more.

The mortuary chamber was a masterpiece of that simple harmonious beauty and good taste of which France has been the recognized leader for centuries.

One entered by a door at one side of the head of the coffin and left by the door immediately opposite at the head of the coffin. Both doors were draped with black hangings bordered with silver embroidery. From the walls hung more black and silver drapery and a canopy of the same exquisite somber dignity was suspended above the coffin.

LIGHTED BY TAPERS.

Four officers stood at rigid attention at each corner of the marshal's bier, their swords reversed in tribute to their dead leader. At the foot of the coffin knelt two sisters of the order of Saint Vincent De Paul, silently praying.

A golden fount of holy water and a silver shaker which each visitor passed to the person following stood by the coffin. All made the sign of the cross in solemn salute.

The room was lighted only by tapers, six of them, each five feet high, burned at either side of the coffin and others at its foot.

In the shadows of a corner of the room an artist was busy with his crayon that future generations might know the simple beauty of the room where Foch lay in death.

NOTED JURIST IN HUB ON WAY TO MAINE

Limitation of birth control was urged by Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, in Boston today on his way to Portland, Me., where he is to debate on companionate marriage with Judge Pattangall of the Maine Supreme Court.

"Birth control is now being practiced throughout the nation," declared Judge Lindsey. "Therefore, why not legalize it and have the practice conducted in a scientific manner."

The judge, who leaves here tomorrow for Portland, then turned to the subject of his coming debate. He claimed that more than half of the clergy who have publicly debated against companionate marriage, have told him privately that they are in favor of it.

"But, the trouble is that none of them will come out publicly and say so because they fear the reaction on their congregations and their superiors," said Judge Lindsey. "Hundreds of judges, too, have told me that they agree with me, but they are also afraid to declare themselves publicly."

If the State had a scientific approach to divorce there would be many happier homes in the country today, Judge Lindsey argued. He proposes his House of Human Welfare, that would be comprised of a lawyer, a doctor and psychiatrist, and it is to such a board that he would have discordant couples go, that their individual cases might be carefully considered and studied.

If such a plan were adopted here in Boston it would save $1,000,000 a year, he claimed, because at least that amount would be saved by couples seeking divorce.

Washington, March 22—The Leviathan is to be transferred to her new owners April 8, under a contract which stood completed today for the sale of the United States Lines and American Merchant Lines, to Paul W. Chapman, Inc., of New York, for $16,300,000. In the sale the Leviathan and 10 other ships will be transferred.

Chairman T. V. O'Connor signed for the Shipping Board and Chapman for his firm. Delivery of the vessels will begin with the transfer of the steamship Leviathan to her new owners on April 8.

Of the purchase price $16,082,000 is for the ships, and $218,000 for the leaseholds here and abroad. Payment for the vessels will be on the basis of 25 per cent of the price of each ship on its delivery with the balance payable in equal annual instalments over a period of 15 years.

The Shipping Board announced that there would be no interruption in the service of either of the lines.

A feature of the contract was the agreement whereby the Chapman firm obligated itself to build in the United States two first class high speed vessels to be put into service in a fast weekly mail route from New York to English Channel ports.

Mother of Three Given 6 Months

Providence, March 22—Mrs. Lucille Jackson, 27, mother of three children, was sentenced to six months in the Women's Reformatory for wrecking into the home of a woman who had befriended her and stealing $365, January 3, last.

Mrs. Alvira Elcha, 127 Charles st., who had taken care of Mrs. Jackson before and after the birth of her youngest child and had provided clothing for the baby, accused Mrs. Jackson of taking the money from a bureau in Mrs. Elcha's absence.

2 DROWNED AS SHIPS COLLIDE

Halifax, N. S., March 22 (AP)—Two members of the crew of the Lunenburg schooner Mahaska were lost when the vessel sank after a collision with the French trawler Remy-en-Chuniard, off the coast of Nova Scotia. The rest of the crew were picked up safely, according to a wireless message received by James Fraser, local agent for the trawler, from Capt. Glatrek of the French vessel.

The Mahaska, of 97 tons registry, took part in the Nova Scotia schooner races in 1923, competing against the Blue Nose. The Remy-Chuniard was operating on the fishing banks off the coast.

NAB WOMAN AS ARMED 'HOBO'

Worcester, March 22—A "trifling" detail of walking out of a telephone booth without dropping an overtime charge resulted in the arrest today of youthful Mrs. Mildred Irwin Gardner of Boston and New York of carrying a revolver and of being a vagrant.

The arrest was made by Patrolman Luke Dillon after Mrs. Gardner, having made a toll call from the public phone of a Washington sq. lunchroom, went out without paying the overtime fee.

Seeing herself followed, Mrs. Gardner jumped into a stranger's auto, Dillon charged.

Officer Dillon take a hand in the proceedings at this stage. In her handbag, he told the court later, he found a 32-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Gardner was held in $400 and granted a week's continuance to give her time to get in touch with friends, whom she refused to name.

Smallpox Outbreak

Concord, N. H., March 22—For the first time since 1912 smallpox was reported in this city by the State Board of Health. Three cases have been found, Dr. Charles Duncan of the State Board announced.

500 GIRL PUPILS ARE KEPT IN A FIRETRAP

LET $4,000,000 SCHOOL WORK WITHOUT BID

The annex of the Girls' High School of Practical Arts on Massachusetts ave., where 500 pupils are housed in three tenements, was denounced by Edward M. Sullivan of the school committee as a fire trap as bad as the famous Scobey Hospital, in which patients were burned to death.

Committeeman Sullivan's charge was made at the hearing of the bill to abolish the Boston schoolhouse commission and substitute for it a new commission of three, appointed by the governor, the mayor and the school committee.

The fire trap charge was only one of many others, equally serious and important, made before the legislative committee on cities. On Tuesday next the schoolhouse commission will defend itself against the allegations.

According to a report of experts who investigated the high school annex for the survey committee, which has been studying Boston school conditions, the building "should be vacated within 24 hours."

"LEAK" ALLEGED

Other allegations brought against the schoolhouse commission were:

That more than $4,000,000 in contracts had been given out without competition.

That there were only two portable schools to show for $309,000 that had been expended for land and an eight-room building in the Back Bay after four years.

That a "leak" in official quarters enabled certain interests to obtain options on the exact number of square feet needed for school buildings that were planned.

That it was six years from the time that land was taken for the new Brighton high school before a spade was put into the ground.

President A. Lawrence Lowell and Judge Michael A. Sullivan, both members of the survey committee, Committeeman Sullivan, Chairman Gray and Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron of the committee were the speakers for the bill.

PORTABLE SCHOOLS

President Lowell, summing up at the end of the day, declared: "One of the things we found was that 207 portable school buildings were being used to house more than 7000 children in condition that nobody would say was proper for permanent housing. But it is permanent. It is permanent temporary housing. Why is that?

"We found that the City Charter makes the approval of the mayor necessary for a contract of more than $1000. We found great quantities of contracts for sums just under $1000, sometimes five of these $900 contracts to one man on one day, all for the same kind of work. We don't charge that anyone is violating the law. But certainly they are not carrying out the intent of the law."

Expect 25,000 in Egg Rolling Contest

Washington, March 22 — The usual egg rolling stunt for children on the White House lawn will be held this year on Monday, April 1. Mrs. Hoover especially desired that this distinctive Washington tradition should be kept up. It is estimated that 25,000 youngsters will participate.

WARNER CALLS MEETING IN 'DRY' DRIVE

A meeting of all district attorneys in the state will be called for Monday, April 8, by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, he announced today in connection with his plan to "dry up" Massachusetts.

The attorney-general's plan is to make the state dry by invoking federal laws in Bay State courts of equity, but the plan is questioned by a number of lawyers in the Hub.

No Coal Price Cut Due Before May 1

Coal prices will not be cut this season in Boston much before the first of May, in the opinion of George L. Batchelder, Jr., one of the largest dealers in this city. Mr. Batchelder said at his home in Beverly that the cut at that time would probably be 75 cents per ton. Portland dealers have announced a price cut of 60 cents a ton, effective April 1, which is 10 cents greater than the usual spring cut.

"The reason for the delay in price cutting this season, if it may be called delay, is to encourage buying for next year. I should say that the price cut will be 75 cents, by agreement, and that the cut will not come much before May 1.

MAYOR NICHOLS ASKS AID IN GAS RATE FIGHT

An appeal to Mayor Nichols for assistance in fighting the proposed new schedule of rates of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company is contained in a letter from Senator John F. Buckley of Dorchester.

The new schedule, according to the senator, which includes a service charge of 50 cents, increases the gas bills of 70 per cent of the company's customers, or about 205,333 householders.

The public utilities commission yesterday, at the request of Senator Buckley, agreed to continue the hearing to May 1 to give the opponents a chance to prepare their case.

Dana Barnum, president of the company, stated that while the amount of gas sold has not materially increased during the past five years, the cost of the company's investment has increased materially because extensions of service.

HARVARD CAST WILL PRESENT COMEDY

Trials for parts in the cast and chorus of "Close Up," a musical comedy, the annual spring production of the Harvard Dramatic Club, are now being held in Cambridge. For the first time in its 30 years the club is presenting a comedy and for the first time in four year, girls are being sought as players.

The production, the music and lines of which were written by undergraduates, will be staged in Cambridge and Boston in May.

All the male roles will be taken by Harvard students, while attempts are now being made to secure the co-operation of the Idler Club, Radcliffe's dramatic association, for the female roles.

Aviators Fail to Ask Information on Ocean Weather

New York, March 22—Not a single aviator has approached Dr. James H. Kimball, government authority on transatlantic weather, for information on probable conditions for a flight thus far this season. Accordingly, the meteorologist anticipates much less labor on his job than he has experienced during the past two years.

Seek Hit-Run Driver Who Injured Three

Police today hunted a hit-and-run driver who fled after his auto injured two women and a three-year-old girl on College Farm rd., Waltham.

The women are Mrs. Mary Haverstock, 33, of Montview ave., Malden, and Miss Lulu Crowe, 25, of 1132 Commonwealth ave., Allston. The little girl is Mrs. Haverstock's 3-year-old daughter, Dorothy.

HOOVER PICKING CRIME BOARD

Washington, March 22 (INS)—Picking a Cabinet was a tough job but President Hoover has found one equally as difficult and possibly even more trying. It is the task of selecting the men who are to compose his commission to investigate the causes of and the remedies for lawlessness.

After weeks of consultations and investigations, there remain on his desk nearly 100 names, from which the nine or eleven will be chosen. Some decisions are understood to have been reached, but the personnel is still far from complete.

Mr. Hoover had hoped to persuade Charles Evans Hughes to head the commission. That hope is now understood to have been abandoned.

PLANS TO CLEAR TARIFF LAW

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Suggestions looking to clarification of the administrative features of the tariff law and to assisting domestic export trade have been submitted to the House ways and means committee by the department of commerce.

The department proposed authorization for the local establishment of foreign trade zones; exemption from new duties of goods in route on the date the tariff law is enacted and temporary duty free importation of samples for examination and possible production.

Declares Students Less Collegiate Than Formerly

Princeton, N. J., March 22—Declaring that students today were much less collegiate than formerly, Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton University added on this definition of what he meant by collegiate: "nonsense, fiddle faddle, bumptious, social immaturity complicated sometimes, though not always, by acute class consciousness."

Speaking of the detrimental effect on students who come to college with plenty of money, Dean Gauss said, "More students are ruined by too much money than parents realize."

CHINESE 'REDS' BURN MISSIONS

Hankow, China, March 22 (AP)—Dispatches from Kanchow-Ki today said Communists had burned several missions in the southern part of Kiangsi Province, near that city.

The missionaries were said to be helpless to oppose to the Communists.

Canton, March 22 (AP)—Telephonic communication with Kanchow-Ki, Kiangsi, was interrupted this morning and it was feared the situation there was grave.

The commissioner of foreign affairs told the American consul general that the Chinese government was planning to dispatch troops to Kiangsi, but due to the absence of higher officials at Nanking conventions, the action had been delayed.

The detention of Marshal Li Chai-Sum, governor of Canton, by the Nationalists at Nanking, is mostly deeply resented here.

Al Smith Snaps the Whip

New York, March 22 (INS)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith was snapping the whip in the arena again. But it was not the political arena this time. He acted as ringmaster in opening a circus here.

Tufts Debaters Defeat Dartmouth

The Tufts College debating team won an overwhelming victory over Dartmouth in a battle of words held in Goddard Chapel in Medford. The local youths upheld the question, "Resolved, that co-education in the higher institutions of learning is preferable to segregation of the sexes." The decision for Tufts was unanimous.

The team was represented by Hugh McKenna, George Parker and Joseph Thornton. The Dartmouth team was composed of Fred Scribner, George Morris and Samuel Adams.

Rabbi Urges All to 'Love Thy Neighbor'

"There can never be universal religion for all men," declared Rabbi B. H. Birnbaum of the Blue Hill Avenue Temple, speaking before an assembly of students at Boston University's school of education. "To even consider such a possibility is uncomplimentary to the Almighty Father, who made all men different," he continued.

Rabbi Birnbaum issued a plea for men of all religions to exert in their lives the rule of "Love thy neighbor." Self-satisfaction is a danger to us now," he said. "Peace among all religions, with recognition of their common inheritance, is the message of this Lenten season," he declared.

FACTS HIDDEN IN ROTHSTEIN CASE—ENRIGHT

Paris, March 22 (AP)—Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner of New York, thinks the real "inside" of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler, has never been told and that in not running down the murderer New York police have missed their greatest chance to clean out graft and crime.

"Rothstein's paper even contained I. O. U.'s signed with names which some day will be placed in the hall of fame," he told the American Club in an address.

"Why wasn't the case handled differently? Why weren't those papers given any publicity? Why wasn't there a thorough search to a successful conclusion which would have rocked the very foundations of New York society and political life."

The former police commissioner did not answer his own questions, but he let it be inferred those implicated were too influential.

New York, March 22 (AP)—Commissioner Whalen said today:

"If former Commissioner Enright is possessed of any information of that nature it is his duty as a good citizen of New York to lay it before the grand jury rather than to make speeches before luncheon clubs in Paris."

4 MORE TALKS BY GIPSY END CAMPAIGN

Gipsy Smith today was preparing for a whirlwind finish to his three weeks of evangelistic meetings in Boston. Two services at Tremont Temple today and two more at Boston Garden will conclude his campaign.

Fully 8000 heard his last two sermons at Tremont Temple and thousands were turned away. Between them the evangelist addressed more than 600 students at Technology, telling them "you will be no worse as a scientist because you love God, no less clever."

Indicative of the wide interest in Gipsy's revivals was the presence on the Tremont Temple platform of Rev. Francis B. Boone, who made the trip of 300 miles to Boston for the sole purpose of hearing Gipsy.

Referring to Gipsy as "the peerless leader of men and women toward God in all the wide world," Allan D. Emery, director of the campaign committee, called for a "big fat offering during these last four days for Gipsy." He declared that a millionaire might make a million in the stock market in 20 minutes and escape criticism, but that he expected some would be narrow-minded enough to arise as critics and condemn Gipsy for carrying away from Boston what he termed "his just rewards for the wonderful work he has done in this city."

'DRUNK' MOVIE MAN KILLS 114

Moscow, March 22 (AP)—One hundred and fourteen men, women and children were dead today after a blaze in a fire-trap movie theater in the village of Igolkino, Vladimir province, 400 kilometers northeast of Moscow. Eleven were severely injured and six slightly hurt.

The theater was of wooden construction and had but one exit. The film caught fire and the flames spread rapidly through the frail structure, those inside jamming themselves in the single doorway. Some attributed the blaze to a drunken projection operator.

Because so many of the victims were parents the department of education has taken steps to care for their orphans.

The pardon restores Goldstein's citizenship rights, including the right to hold public office.

FIGURES SHOW DRUG HABIT TO BE GENERAL

By KENNETH CLARK

Washington, March 22—Drug addiction is endemic, or general, throughout the country rather than sporadic, or local.

There is no State, scarcely a community, in the nation which is not threatened by the ever-present menace of dope.

In many States there is a wide discrepancy between the number of violations of the anti-narcotic laws and the number of convictions.

These salient facts on the narcotic evil were discovered in a survey just completed by federal officials.

NEAR POPULATION CENTER

It was discovered that the center of the narcotic criminal population of America is in central Illinois, only a few miles west of the center of the total population. The center of the criminal narcotic population for the area east of the Mississippi river is in central West Virginia, while the center of the area west of the Mississippi is in northeastern Colorado.

While the largest number of drug addicts are concentrated in the East, States west of the Mississippi river have the highest percentage for each 100,000 of population.

The rate of commitments in prisons for narcotic offenses for the whole United States was 7.1 per 100,000 population. There were great variabilities for different parts of the country.

WIDELY DISTRIBUTED

For instance, the rates ranged from 26.45 per 100,000 in Nevada and 38.9 in California to 0.0 in Mississippi, New Hampshire and Vermont. The rate indicates a wide but variable distribution of narcotic offenders and probably also differences in local procedure in specting the disposition of these offenders other than by prison commitments.

The rate of conviction of persons not registered (chiefly addicts) under the Harrison Narcotic Law shows a general distribution of these offenders all over the country, although the percentage per 100,000 is higher west of the Mississippi. For instance, the percentage varies, as follows:

Nevada, 24.85 per 100,000; Oregon, 9.99; Washington, 9.24; California, 8.29; Colorado, 8.32; Missouri, 8.99; Michigan, 5.29; Illinois, 3.74; Ohio, 3.36; Virginia, 4.25; Georgia 2.99 Florida, 3.39; New York, 3.93; Maryland, 3.57; New Jersey, 2.80; Pennsylvania, 1.84; and Massachusetts, 1.39.

PROPORTION OF VIOLATIONS

Reported violations by unregistered persons is largest in the West, the highest percentages being:

Nevada, 45.49 per 100,000; Washington, 11.24; California, 10.33; Missouri, 13.26; Michigan, 7.04; Florida, 10.29; District of Columbia, 13.79; New York, 5.54; New Jersey, 3.51; Pennsylvania, 2.51; and Massachusetts, 2.08.

AMERICAN SAFE IN BANDIT CAMP

Los Angeles, March 22 (INS)—Assurances that T. L. Carnahan, American mining engineer held captive by Mexican bandits near Zacatecas, was safe and that mine officials were negotiating for his safe return were received today by parents of Carnahan's wife.

Mrs. Carnahan is at La Noria mine in Zacatecas awaiting the outcome of the negotiations.

Mother Carried Out Dead as 3 Tots Watch Fire

Chicago, March 22 (AP)—It was recess time at the Arlington Heights (Chicago suburb) school, and someone shouted: "Gee, kids, there's a fire!"

Walter, Ruth and Adeline Wells, children of Mrs. Anna Louise Wells, ran toward the blaze. What youngster doesn't get a thrill out of a fire?

They drew nearer and saw it was their own home.

What is that? Firemen are carrying a woman out! It looks like—yes, she's dead!

Three children, sobbing now, clung close to each other under the pall of smoke from their home as an ambulance drove slowly away with the body of their mother.

Laborite Wins M. P. Seat in Scotland

London, March 22 (AP)—Labor gained another victory in the by-election held today in the northern division of Lanark, Scotland, the party candidate succeeding to the seat left vacant by the death of the Conservative member, Sir A. Sprot.

'Bombs' for Chicago Are Only Harmless Data on Racketeers

New York, March 22 (AP)—Three bombs discovered in a parcel post package at the Grand Central postoffice were found by police today to be harmless lecture exhibits.

It was not until George L. Hostetter, Chicago lawyer and author of a book on racketeers, appeared at police headquarters that it was learned the bombs were "duds." He said he had used the papers in a lecture here.

Newton Mayor Urges History of His City

A communication has been sent to the Newton board of aldermen by Mayor Edwin O. Childs recommending that the sum of $3000 be appropriated to finance the writing of a history of that city. The author is to be Dr. Henry K. Rowe of Newton Center, and the new history will begin where Smith's history of Newton ended.

The order for the money will be presented to the board at its next meeting, and if the same is passed Dr. Rowe's services will be procured.

John D., Jr., Buys Entire Village for $700,000

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 22 (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has bought the entire village of East View, on the outskirts of Tarrytown. He paid $700,000, said to be three or four times the assessed valuation for dwellings housing 46 families, general stores, postoffice and dance halls.

Most of the property will be used for the new main line of the Putnam division railroad and the rest becomes part of the vast Rockefeller holdings. It is expect that by May 1 every building will be torn down.

East View was a thriving village so far back as colonial times when it specialized in the grinding of wheat in mills along the Saw Mill river. Some of the houses which will be torn down have been inhabited by the same families for seven generations.

1000-Year Alphabet Changed Into Latin

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, March 22 (AP)—King Alexander today ordered use of the Latin alphabet throughout Jugoslavia to replace the archaic complicated Cyrilic characters which have been in use for the last thousand years.

Although the change will involve millions of dollars it will unify the present diverse languages of the Triune kingdom.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 22 (AP)—Dr. Herman G. James, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and the Graduate College of the University of Nebraska, has been selected president of the University of South Dakota.

Oh! for the Life of a Married Man in the Cannibal Isle!

New York, March 22 (AP)—Happy the married male cannibal in New Guinea. Lee S. Crandall of the New York Zoo, back from an expedition, says that once a groom, a man's working days are over. Wife tends the garden, keeps the pigs and otherwise works hard to make hubby rich enough to buy another wife. Then No. 1 will have leisure.

NOTED SURGEON URGES U. S. INCOME TAX REDUCTION

THE president of Suffolk Medsociety, the oldest medical organization in Suffolk Co believes a further reduction of the federal tax on earnecmes should be made.

He is Dr. Lincoln Davis of 295 Beacon st., Boston, one of the greatest surgeons in New England.

Not only does Dr. Davis endorse the nationwide movement for a downward revision of the Federal income tax as it applies to earned income, but he also believes the Federal income tax law should be simplified.

Here is what Dr. Davis says:

"In fairness to the men and women who live on their earnings, I believe that a further reduction of the tax on earned income in the Federal income tax law should be made. Furthermore, the credit for dependent children up to 18 years of age, should, in my opinion, be extended to 21 years, since in most cases parents subject to the tax are bearing the highest financial burden in respect to their children between the ages of 18 and 21.

MANY PETITIONS

Hundreds of signatures to petitions calling upon Congress to revise the law are pouring into the office of the Boston Evening American. They come from men and women in every line of endeavor.

To give an idea of the widespread interest this movement has aroused a few of those who have signed, selected at random, follow:

F. G. Gardner, treasurer, 6 Beacon st., Boston; R. A. Wheeler, engineer, Apponaug, R. I.; Bert S. Groom, 65 Tudor st., Methuen, superintendent of markets; Peter A. Fox, 104 Bymer st., Jamaica Plain, chemist; H. L. Lowell, Cohasset, dairyman; Walter F. York, car foreman, 593 Forest ave., Portland Me.; Charles H. Eldam, physician, Lawrence; James G. Bent, superintendent of construction, 42 Auckland st., Dorchester.

Others who signed the petition include Miss Mary E. McCarthy, bookkeeper, 47 Monument ave., Charlestown; Henry Lawrin, lawyer, 60 Pemberton sq., Boston; Thomas P. Hawkins, musician, 4 Emery st., Everett; Harry C. Thuther, printer, Lincoln st., Hopkinton; George P. McCrea, chain store superintendent, 24 Circuit rd., Dedham; John A. East, machinist, 27 Wiley rd., Belmont.

LIST GROWS

Additional signers are Joseph A. Lager, musician, 16½ Rock ave., Lynn; Charles W. Lundgren, store manager, 8 Church pl., Roxbury; Mrs. Mary Blair Hogan, proofreader, 11 Central st., Hudson; John G. Hansen, construction superintendent, 831 Massachusetts ave., Dedham; Ethel M. Perry, stenographer, 31 Rockwell st., Dorchester; W. H. Follett, postmaster, Howard, R. I.; Ralph W. Thayer, 13 Chestnut st., Natick.

Still others who signed are John O. Burman, engineer, 750 Wilder st., Lowell; David Davies, refrigerating engineer, 40 Custer st., Jamaica Plain; Henry Bauer, manufacturer of textiles, 162 East Haverhill st., Lawrence; Ella F. Trefethen, underwriter, 36 Washington st., East Milton; Forest L. Mason, school teacher, 16 Edgewood Circle, Quincy; James Brown Thornton, physician, 366 Commonwealth ave., Boston; M. W. Persson, 27 Forbes st., Worcester, and M. P. Tarquinio, sculptor, 256 Prospect st., West Roxbury.

OSSED' WIFE ETS DIVORCE

wenty-six years of married life ed for Mrs. Cecilia Borgeson of ley rd., Belmont, in a whirl d of flying household utensils, acks and abuse. With Mrs. oehy Battles testifying to her ther being "tossed around" by father, Olaf, Judge Beane anted a divorce.

The daughter testified that she nessed some of her father's a- ons in tossing her mother around d she further stated that she has en her father running around th other women.

One time, she said, she saw h n ating ice cream in a drug stor with another woman. She said she nce saw her father throw her other against the door and that he was so frightened by his outburst that she left the house. Every time her mother asked him for money, she said, he threaten d her life.

Men's Retreat to Close Sunday

The 54th annual retreat of the Young Men's Catholic Association, being conducted in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, will close next Sunday morning with a special mass at 7:30.

Following the mass, the annual retreat breakfast will be served in the gymnasium of the Boston College high school building, adjoining the church. The Very Rev. Father Edward P. Tivnan, S. J., will be the principal speaker. The Rev. Father James F. Kilroy, S. J., provincial of the New England division of Jesuits, also will speak, together with the Rev. Father James T. McCormick, S. J., who is reverend president of the association.

Sign This and Cut Your Taxes

To the Congress of the United States:

THE undersigned respectfully urges that Congress give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all taxes on earned incomes.

This is urged because in many instances earners of salaries, wages, fees or commissions for personal services have only a few years of good incomes, and prior to and after that period have substantially smaller incomes.

Their period of better earnings, which might give them a chance to accumulate some savings, is heavily taxed. Labor in general, clerical workers, salesmen, lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects, journalists, accountants, actors, musicians, singers and members of all other professions are in the same plight in the matter of earned incomes, as compared with earnings on capital.

The use of my name on a petition to Congress is hereby granted.

Fathers and Sons Hear Newsies' Band

The Boston City Club auditorium was filled last evening with fathers and sons to hear stories from football and mountain climbing heroes. The real enthusiasm, however, came when the newsboys' band from the Harry E. Burroughs Newsboys' Foundation, established in the old Elks building next door, came in as guests and filled the house with music.

It was an unusual sight to see at various tables a ragged coat close up to a well-kept child from a fashionable suburb. Those who have watched the friendship growing between the boys' club and the City Club commend highly Civic Secretary Hayes' pan to put the melting pot on the fire occasionally.

REPARATIONS PLAN REJECTED BY BERLIN

Berlin, March 22 (INS)—Germany has tentatively rejected the allied reparation plan because it ties up reparations and allied war debts, it was learned here.

The allied reparation experts are demanding that Germany not only pay the reparation obligation, but an additional amount to make up the allied war debts to the United States it was learned here today.

Score Jury Verdicts on Personal Views

New York, March 22 — (AP)— United States Atty. Charles H. Tuttle told a joint meeting of Grand Jurors Associations of New York, New Jersey and Maryland that jurors who return verdicts based upon their personal views rather than upon the law are undermining the "whole temple of justice."

Without referring specifically to prohibition cases, Mr. Tuttle said that "lately there has gained currency the notion that as to some statute or other jurors will take the oath with mental reservations and will not convict because of personal views as to the wisdom or righteousness of the legislation."

Homes for Cabinet Officers a Problem

Washington, March 21 (AP)— Problem of state held subordinate positions in the busy lives of the wives of President Hoover's Cabinet members.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams is having her troubles trying to find a place in which to establish her husband, Secretary of the Navy. "Every single day for three weeks I have hunted for a place," she said, "and still I seem to be no further."

She and her husband are living temporarily in the palatial residence of Mrs. Larz Anderson.

COOLIDGE DUE TO START HOME TOMORROW

New York, March 22 — Former President Coolidge, in this city on a business trip, is expected to start back to Northampton, Mass., tomorrow, it was stated today.

He is having conferences with various business leaders, and the conviction grows that the discussions have to do with offers of jobs at large salaries to the former chief executive.

The former President, who arrived on personal business remained in seclusion in a two-room suite at the Hotel Commodore. Just what the business was remained Coolidge's secret and that of Frank W. Stearns, his personal friend, who spent the day with him.

Two or three other gentlemen may have had knowledge of what went on behind the guarded doors, for Coolidge was known to have had some visitors. But who they were or why they called was not divulged. It was the former President's first excursion from his home city since he left the White House, but apparently he didn't choose to make it much of a holiday.

Charge 2 Entered Vacant Residence

Leominster, March 22—Charged with breaking and entering the vacant house of Tree Warden Julius Hassett on Willard st., here, Harold Enright, 20, and Cyrus Wood, 19, both of Leominster, were arrested here. Police said they captured the young men in the house. They charged that Enright possessed a loaded revolver when he was arrested.

On Hospital Board

Nelson Curtis was elected president of the Faulkner Hospital trustees, and Andrew J. Peters was elected vice-president of the corporation and chairman of the board of trustees at a meeting of the board held at the hospital.

Visits Hoover With a Suit Made in Three Hours

Washington, March 22—Wearing an aviation uniform of his country that had been made for him by tailors in three hours, Capt. E. P. Lundborg of the Swedish Royal Flying Corps was received by President Hoover. Lundborg, who rescued Gen. Nobile in the Arctic, was forced to the sudden call on the tailors by failure of his trunk to arrive from New York.

Foresters to Attend Annual Communion

John Henry Newman Court Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will hold its annual communion breakfast in Arcanum Hall, Broadway, Everett, Sunday. Members will attend the 7:30 mass in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Among invited guests are Mayor James A. Roche of Everett, High Chief Ranger Peter A. Walsh, Deputy High Chief Ranger Peter C. Delurey and the executives of all the Catholic organizations in the city. Daniel J. Sweeney and Patrick J. Duggan head the committee.

HOST OF BOYS AND GIRLS RUSH FLAG CONTEST ANSWERS

TO the thousands of boys and girls, contestants in the patriotic Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association, remember that the head of your local contest unit will aid you in following the rules governing the filing of answers and essays!

While three weeks still remain in which the participants in the Flag Contest may prepare their answers to the list of official questions and write their accompanying essays, it is well for you to file your papers with your local contest head as early as possible.

This will enable him in turn to set the date for the calling together of the local juries of award for the marking of the papers.

Remember also that all papers must be turned in to the local unit heads by April 12. The local contest head may, following April 12, call together his juries of award for the marking of the contestants' papers.

PAPERS GRADED

In other words, during the period between April 12 and May 4, the papers of the local contestants will be read, graded and marked by the local judging committees and the offerings of the winners forwarded to the Regional Committee of Judges.

The set of official answers will be forwarded to local contest heads in the near future.

It might be well for the heads of local units to impress upon contestants Paragraph 15 which is as follows:

15. CERTIFICATE OF ELIGIBILITY. Every Contestant must enclose in the sealed envelope, mentioned in Paragraph 14, a signed statement reading as follows:

1. I was born .....
(Date)

2. I am NOT a graduate of a public high school, or the equivalent in a private or parochial school.

3. My answers to the questions of the Flag Contest were prepared by me and my essay is my own original production.

4. My father's name is .....
.....

5. My address is .....
.....

6. The following is the assumed name I signed to my papers:
.....
.....
.....
.....
(Use three names)
(Signed) .....
(Real name)

WRITE ESSAY

This feature of the contest is most important in order to preclude possible favoritism. The identity of the contestants will be kept from the juries of award—local, regional and national.

The heads of local units should impress upon the minds of the contestants to date in the contest the following:

Contestants must do two things answer 75 questions relating to the history and symbolism of the American Flag and write an essay on the subject of "Old Glory's Greatest Glory."

There being 18 regions, there will be 18 boys and 18 girls whose papers are entered in the national competition, which is to be held in Washington in June, each of these regional winners being taken there in order that they may personally recite their essays before the national judges.

From Washington the 36 will be taken on a trip to historic points of interest throughout the east, with all expenses paid and with competent chaperonage.

From this group there will then be selected two boy winners and two girl winners who will be awarded a three months' cruise around the world as guests of the United States Flag Association.

In addition to this, the three boys and three girls who make the first, second and third highest marks in each region—a total of 108—will be awarded scholarships, worth $200 each, for use in any college, school or institution of learning the recipient may select.

There will also be hundreds of medals, certificates of honorable mention, etc., for those who make better than ordinary grades.

Contestants Take Notice

Contestants must not send their answers and essays to the Flag Contest Editor, but must deliver them to the person sponsoring the local contest units.

The contestants who are in doubt as to the proper procedure relative to their part in the Flag Contest should not fail to take the question to their local unit head.

If the local unit head is doubtful as to the procedure, the Flag Contest Editor announces that he is ready and willing to offer any assistance to them in any matter whatsoever connected with the Flag Contest.

MALADY FATAL TO SAILOR

New London, March 22—The coast guard destroyer Monoghan was due to dock here today with Seaman Joseph Blizzard dead from spinal meningitis and another member of the crew recovering from the disease which broke out while the craft was cruising in Long Island Sound.

As a precaution against further spread of the malady and in an effort to trace if possible a carrier of the spinal meningitis germ, a doctor was sent out to the destroyer and has given each man aboard the vessel individual medical attention each day.

Wife Preferred Job to Household Work, Man Charges

That his wife preferred her job as bookkeeper to a wifely task of housekeeper, was testified by Irving E. Heath of Hudson, in Middlesex Probate Court where Judge Beane later granted him a divorce. Heath said he and his wife, Grace M. Heath, were happy until he enlisted to serve in the World War; that she then got a bookkeeper's job which she liked so well she refused to give it up when he came back home. He accused her of desertion.

15 Shaken Up in N. Y. Harbor Crash

New York, March 22—Forty-five ferryboat passengers were shaken up and one passenger of a tug was thrown overboard as the two craft collided off Bayonne, N. J., as a result of confused signals.

The tug Winthrop of Providence, R. I., struck Private Ferries No. 3, plying between Staten Island and Bayonne, near Bayonne pier. Charles Kerrigan of Brooklyn was thrown into the water and rescued by the tug crew. He was suffering from submersion and was taken to a Staten Island hospital.

EDSEL FORD TO BUILD YACHT

Work on a new yacht for Edsel B. Ford is to start soon in the yards of George Lawley & Sons, Naponset. Delivery is expected by December and the son of Henry Ford plans a winter cruise in Florida waters.

The yacht will be 130 feet long, all steel and operated by Diesel engines. It will have three double and two single staterooms, four baths, dining salon, drawing room and observation room. A crew of 12 will man the craft which was ordered from Henry J. Gielow, naval architects of New York.

Police Stage Two Raids in Malden

Two liquor raids were made by the Malden police. At the home of Richard M. Conrad, Adams st., the police seized six gallons of wine and 71 gallons of beer.

At the home of Anthony Mura, Adams st., they took possession of 1¾ gallons of beer and a quantity of empty bottles. Both men will be summoned into the district court.

MATCH TRAPS 3 IN HOLDUP

Northampton, March 22—Sergt. James J. Murphy of headquarters has qualified as the local Sherlock Holmes. Following a burglary of a North King st. filling station, the police officer asked Robert LaRochelle, 19, one of three suspects for a match. Murphy noted that the proffered match was of the same brand that had been stolen from the station and resultant questions forced an alleged confession from the trio.

The other two were Harold and Edward Hermann, brothers. On their information a search warrant was procured, and the home of William Hermann, Jr., of North King st. was raided. A quantity of cigars, cigarettes and candy was found, and Hermann was arrested.

In district court the three youths pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and larceny in the night time, and were held for the grand jury in $1000 bonds each. William Hermann, Jr., denied receiving stolen goods, and his case was continued under $300 bonds.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a Bittersweets apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

A Little Bit Out of the Way But It Pays to Walk

FALKSON SAYS

"For 35 years I manufactured men's fine clothing—and sold to retailers in Boston, New England and all over America. Millions of men have worn Falkson made clothes with satisfaction. Last fall I decided to sell direct to wearer and save my customers the middleman's profits. The news caught like wildfire. This spring my business is increasing by leaps and bounds."

Falkson Now Sells Direct to Wearer at Retail!

Meaning a saving of $10 to $15! "Figure it out yourself. I make and sell direct to you! See what you can buy for $30 to $35 in the ordinary retail stores and then come to my factory and look at these FALKSON-MADE CLOTHES I am selling for only $21.50. I have satisfied thousands of men last season and I am going to satisfy thousands more this spring."

a Saving of $10 to $15

Will stand out clear in your mind after you have made comparison. It is well worth walking a couple of blocks. You don't have to pay any more for good clothes if you buy them at Falkson's. You men who are in the habit of paying more for your clothes should come down to Falkson's in justice to yourself and pocketbook.

SEE POLITICAL REVOLT OVER PROHIBITION

Prof. Jerome G. Kerwin, University of Chicago political scientist, declares in an interview given the Hearst newspapers that, unless America's prohibition problem is speedily solved, "we may expect some kind of a political explosion in the next four years of the national political administration."

Prof. Kerwin made this declaration in commenting on the $25,000 award offered by William Randolph Hearst for the best temperance plan as a substitute for the evils of prohibition.

"One thing is certain, the present prohibition set-up is wrong," he said. "It is far too drastic to be enforcible. Consequently, it has not been enforced.

"We cannot go on with the prohibition situation as it is. We are facing a crisis on the liquor question. I believe and hope that President Hoover's genius is capable of devising the necessary administrative tools with which to meet the crisis.

MANY EVILS

"But if these tools do not succeed in effecting a solution, then, I believe, we may look for some kind of explosion midway in President Hoover's term.

"The evils of the prohibition laws as they are now in effect are manifold. They have created disrespect for the law on the part of otherwise thoroughly respectable citizens.

"Prohibition as we know it has created a dangerous aristocracy of snobs, who publicly declare that the dry laws are good for workingman,' and privately consider themselves privileged to drink as much as they please.

"The dry groups, overwhelmed with their success in passing the original prohibition law, overstepped the bounds by drafting too drastic an instrument of enforcement.

"A readjustment is inevitable. I do not feel that we should go back to old regime of the saloon. But we should seek regulation of liquor consumption, rather than complete prohibition against drinking any intoxicating beverages.

NEED REGULATION

"Perhaps a plan similar to that enforced by the Canadian and Scandinavian governments for the sale of such beverages under purity guarantees would work out in America. To regulate rather than prohibit—that I believe will be the real means of arriving at a solution of the whole temperance problem."

Following are other interviews and opinions on the contest and the prohibition situation:

GEORGE E. CURRAN, Exalted Ruler, Boston Lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks—It is cause for extreme gratification, encouragement and hope, to find the powerful Hearst papers addressing themselves to the task of solving the liquor problem in the United States.

Any law that cannot command respect and obedience from the multitude, automatically nullifies itself.

NOT VALID LAW

The prohibition amendment is not valid law because it is not founded on right reason.

Liquor is not inherently wrong. If its abuse has been an agency of crime, why not prohibit the general use of the auto, the abuse of which provides a fearful mockery of the majesty of the law and a menace to the lives and property of the public.

Prohibition has succeeded in undermining respect for all law. It has made America the most lawless nation in the world. It has corrupted public officials and subverted the idea of democratic government.

Prohibition can never be enforced, but it will accomplish one thing—the elimination of respect for all law.

WILLIAM DAMIANO, vice-president and New England director of the National Hotel Exchange; former Special Assistant District Attorney, Middlesex County; Assistant City Solicitor of Cambridge—"I approve the thought of William Randolph Hearst for a new temperance plan to be offered as a substitute for national prohibition.

WANTS BOARD TO STUDY PLAN FOR BASIN

Plea that a special commission be appointed to study the matter of the roadway project in connection with the Charles River Basin plan, was made by Henry L. Harriman, author of the basin park way plan, before the legislative committee on Metropolitan affairs.

Harriman said he had not abandoned his fight for the passage of the roadway project. He explained that if the committee felt the road cannot be built, he hoped they would report the bill leaving out the roadway, so that the improvements all agreed on would not be rejected.

Mr. Harriman told of the commission's interview with Mrs. James J. Storrow regarding the plans for the Storrow memorial gift. As to the commissioner's plans, which included a roadway, Mrs. Storrow suggested, said Harriman, that the commission use its judgment, although she did not like the roadway feature.

WOULD COST $2,970,000

"I believe in this proposed roadway," Harriman said. "I hope it will not be eliminated. I believe that the outlying districts will be more willing to pay with the roadway included than for purely park improvements.

"But if you feel that the road cannot be built, I hope you will see fit to report a bill leaving out the roadway, the crossing at Gerry's Landing and the overpasses. On that basis the total cost would be $2,970,000. It would include the underpass for Memorial Drive at Harvard Bridge and the improvements of the two missing links in the boulevard in the upper end of the basin.

"One million of the cost would be covered by the Storrow gift. On the district would be assessed $1,430,000, the cost of the park improvement and one-half of the cost of the highway changes, with $420,000 for the highway fund and $110,000 on Cambridge for improvements on that side.

ASKS ACTION ON PARKWAY

"Should this course be followed, I urge strongly that the roadway matter be studied during the coming year by a special commission. The question of paying for district improvements will never be settled until there is a definite fund coming in yearly, as with the highways, either by the addition of a cent to the gasoline tax or some other means. I believe one cent should be added to the gasoline tax."

LEIGHTON ROLLINS BUILDS LITTLE THEATER IN MAINE

Surry Playhouse Designed to Be Model of Old Time Construction, Says Betty Alden

IN THIS WORKADAY WORLD the heart is gladdened and the soul refreshed when someone's visions become fact and dreams come true. Up on a Maine hillside, in Surry, a vision that once abode in the shape of Leighton Rollins comes beautifully true in the shape of the Surry Playhouse. Beam on beam it rises, the central unit in a far-seeing scheme that when it reaches its ultimate destination will be a playhouse and a theater school and add another link in the chain that connects several Little Theaters, one to another.

PERFECTLY THE THEATER will fit the Maine landscape, with the simplicity of design and lack of ostentation that rural New England boasts as principal elements in its visual satisfyingness. Enormous anent hand-hewn rafters and much of the weathered shingle finish of the time-worn barn on the place have been utilized in the theater's building, and otherwise craftsmen have kept faithfully to the type that rose everywhere on New England hillsides a century or more ago, and has withstood summer suns and winters winds ever since.

FROM THE CANADIAN border almost to the Mason and Dixon line prominent people are taking a wholesouled interest in the venture. Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, widow of the composer, and chatelaine of a lovely summer home up on the shores of Blue Hill Bay, tops the list, and in the honorary state of sponsors in chief are William Tudor Gardiner, Maine's governor, and his handsome and gracious lady, the former Miss Margaret Thomas of Boston. And from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston aficionados of the Little Theater will make the pilgrimage to Maine for the opening.

MR. ROLLINS, WITH HIS heart's interest in Surry, so to speak, has been recuperating from an illness at "The Homestead," the Rollins establishment in Wellesley, and now goes back to the Big City to be honorary guest of the Theater Club at an enormous luncheon on March 28, at the Biltmore. The metropolis does not hold him much longer, however, for late April will find him back in town immersed in his "Try-Out" and his "Surry" playhouses, certainly two big interests to be successfully promoted.

LOITERING ALONG THE wave-kissed sands of the American Riviera, the Alvan T. Fullers find surcease from the humdrum of official duties where Florida's vaunted sunlight throws its shadows through the palms. No journey southward but what includes Palm Beach; and there, amid the social excitements of a brilliant season unusually prolonged with apartments at the Breakers, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller have been in the very midst of the social vortex. And, although they did not cross to Havana nor sail over to Nassau on this trip, they have seen Florida very thoroughly.

NOW THE FORMER FIRST Gentleman and First Lady of Massachusetts are turning their faces Northward again. But their return hither will be the same leisurely progress that characterized their Florida stay. Not until crocuses thrust their bright tinted faces through the brown earth, and Easter chapeaux have been flaunted on the Avenue do the Fullers plan to be at their handsome town residence in Beacon st., and even the joyous Easter season may be well past before their genial countenances are seen here again.

FLORIDA ALSO IS THE LATE winter abiding place of the Ralph W. Menards of Cohasset. Just so regularly as the winter rolls around the Menards flit southward for several weeks. Having a winter home at Edgewater in the favorite playground state Mrs. Menard packs up the Menard Hopefuls and departs from winter snows to balmy breezes. There are three small Menards to bask in the Florida sunshine and play in the Florida sands, all later to be joined by Mr. Menard.

AND IT'S QUITE ON THE program that the seniors tour a bit and take in some of the famous Florida resorts where society plays so blithesomely; cruise through the keys if the Willcut yacht, the Mermet, is in southern waters; have a go at the sportive and wary sailfish and meet with friends all up and down the well traveled tourist paths. Mr. Menard left recently for the South, to join his family at Edgewater, and not to come North again until April appears on the calendar.

DOWN COMES THE CURTAIN on the formal dance scene, so far as this most modern of diversions concerns the Senior Supper Dance set. So far as that coterie considers the calendar, a finis might be written with the final dance of the Senior Supper Series, as it will be this evening at the Hotel Copley-Plaza. One of the largest hostess groups is Mrs. Parkman Howe's, who entertains near a score of people for dinner before the dance. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Minot figure in the entertainment roles—they have reservations for guests and prelude the dance with a

A MARCH SATURDAY THAT has no important society wedding arrives tomorrow. And although the romantic strain is absent from the social symphony, there's no cessation to the blaring of syncopated measure. And chiefly it is provided by that merry set of College men, the youth that pursues the higher learning in the shade of the Harvard elms, and is included in Hasty Pudding Club membership. The annual costume dance at the cheery clubhouse in Cambridge interests the current buds enormously—and the bud's older sister scorns not an invitation to the affair.

Warns Motorists by Horn

Hoboken, N. J., March 22 (AP) —A new locomotive built for the Lackawanna has a horn to warn motorists at grade crossings. It is operated by air from the brake system. The idea is perhaps that folks will hear and heed when they would not pay attention to a steam whistle.

HARMONY WITH THE ENSEMBLE and never a clash with the feet

"Indeed, they're very lovely shoes....so smart! But will they be comfortable?"

Perish the thought! They're Cowards. The eye does not betray the foot. Even when, as now, the styles are Paris' latest decree....comfort continues to be Coward's very first principle. Where the stylists leave off, our expert fitters begin.

So concentrate all you please on their bewitching lines....their charming detail....their correct color tones....their complete harmony with the newest modes. You're free to think about their smartness because we long ago thought about their comfort.

Ordered to Give Bond for Support

Howard E. Wass of Stetson, Me, found guilty by a Suffolk County jury of failure to support his two minor children, Stanley and Bernice, who are living with Mrs. Emily Wass in Boston, was ordered by Judge Buttrick to furnish a bond of $500 to guarantee the payment of $12 weekly toward the children's support.

Mrs. Emily Wass is the divorced wife of Wass. Mrs. Maude Warren Wass, who married Wass in Florida following his divorce, was a witness at the trial. She said that her husband hadn't been able to support himself let alone provide support for his children.

Co-operation in Club Work Stressed

STRESSING co-operation as the fairest flower that grows in women's clubs, Mrs. Frank G. Allen won new honors as an extemporaneous speaker before the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts at its annual "Governor's Day" luncheon.

"Before coming here I visited the Flower Show," Mrs. Allen said, "and after looking at the individual exhibits I looked down from the gallery upon the perfect whole. It was like the result when people co-operate in their interests and work together for a perfect achievement.

"It is so with the Women a Republican Clubs th roughout the State. Their work blends into a powerful whole for the State itself. You have added a new laurel today by being a perfect hostess and I thank you for the extreme cordiality with which you have welcomed me here."

Inasmuch as the occasion was one honoring Governors Allen of Massachusetts, Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire and John E. Weeks of Vermont, with their wives, Mrs. Allen fell into step with the distinguished speakers upon a moment's notice, to the delight of Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, president, and the 500 women attending. Mrs. Tobey and Mrs. Weeks escaped this "ordeal."

Mrs. Frank G. Allen

A tribute to the memory of Marshal Foch was paid by the assembly as it stood silent for a moment, and was then addressed by Maj-Gen. Preston Brown.

Other honored guests included Mayor and Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Lieut. Governor and Mrs. William S. Youngman, Secretary of State and Mrs. Frederic Cook, Mrs. Preston Brown, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Philip Andrews, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Atty-Gen. Joseph E. Warner and Col. and Mrs. Schuyler.

YOUTH CONFERENCE

Training the emotions of a young child makes the difference between a successful, normal citizen and the youth which eventually finds his way into the various social service agencies for proper adjustment to life, Dr. Olive Cooper told the scores of enthusiastic young mothers who attended the first session of the Youth Conference at Boston University.

Five hundred women under 35 years of age feasted on the advice given them for better home making and citizenship by Mrs. Axel A. Packard, State Federation president at the luncheon in the Statler ballroom today. They came from every part of the State, eager for new ideas on the program arranged for them by the American home department, Mrs. Ralph H. Reed of Swampscott, chairman.

SATURDAY MEETINGS

BROOKLINE WOMAN'S CLUB
The theater party of the club will be held at the Repertory Theater under the auspices of the health committee, Mrs. E. H. Fuge, chairman. The play is "The New Neurotic." The club gave $1000 a few years ago to endow a memorial bed in the Massachusetts Women's Hospital and now wishes to give the same amount to help enlarge the buildings and equipment. Mrs. Elfredn V. Haines has charge of tickets. Mrs. J. A. Came will serve sandwiches, cake, coffee and punch between the acts. Mrs. J. A. Richardson will dispense home made candy.

MARY EATON TO MAKE TALKIE NEXT MONTH

By JULIA O. PARSONS

NEW YORK March 22.—Pretty blonde Mary Eaton is doing her summer shopping early to be in readiness to leave for Hollywood. She is expected at the Paramount coast studio in April to make "Pointed Heels," an all-talkie of backstage life.

Weather reports indicate that Miss Eaton will need her warmest clothes and that it will be perfectly safe to pack her brass kettle-bass—I take along a trunk full of gay summer finery. Also advance reports indicate that Paramount pins high hopes on the little blonde cutie who is finishing "Coconuts" at the eastern studio in preparation for starring in "Pointed Heels."

Ludwig Berger, whose patience and understanding of stars and their temperaments is usually commendable, will direct Miss Eaton. Charlie Brackett, dramatic editor of the New Yorker is the author of "Pointed Heels" by the way.

THEY are all coming to New York sooner or later—I mean Hollywood's best movie people. We see them in the cafes and on the streets and we read about them in the newspapers. Marion Nixon will arrive here in time to be present at the opening of Eddie Dowling's picture at the George M. Cohan Theater on April 13.

Marion's contract was not renewed by Universal. For some time she floundered around rather hopelessly in the freelance field. Then she made a picture for Warner Brothers, and did so well that she has been signed to make four pictures here. She has just finished "Headings" and is now waiting on Al Jolson's forthcoming Vitaphone number.

ALL of the changes of mind on parts of us in movie circles on the Coast I find here in New York that there is an occasional spontaneous combust on George Jessel wanted Estelle Taylor for his leading lady in "The Racketeers." Tiffany Stahl were agreeable with everything but Miss Taylor's salary. Consequently not only will Miss Taylor not be in the cast but George Jessel decided not to make the picture. The report is that he will choose his own leading lady or there won't be any picture.

HAVING dined with Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor I know how ridiculous the rumors are about their impending divorce. Once in a while Jack and Estelle have a good old-fashioned quarrel, just the same as any other married folk. They are both in love with each other, and unless something unexpected happens I do not look to see them divorced any more than I do any one of a dozen married people I know. "How could we get a divorce, asked Estelle when we're living together at the same hotel?"

"Divorce?" asked Jack, "I just signed up for two prize fights, but I don't know anything about a divorce."

Maybe Estelle and Jack will get divorced. You can never tell, but at the present they are living together in apparent peace and harmony.

SNAPSHOTS of New York collected at random: Mrs. Tim McCoy lunching at the Algonquin Hotel with Frank Case, popular proprietor. Mrs. Carl Van Vechten also at the Algonquin. Florence Vidor and Jascha Heifitz dining with a party of friends at Caviar, a smart New York restaurant. Estelle Taylor and Jack Dempsey attending performance of Whoopee. Bert Lytell holding Corinne Griffith and Walter Morosco bon voyage. Long distance telephone call from Los Angeles for Corinne reaching the boat. Bet as it pulled out. And Abraham Lerner was at this hotel. Saw no film folk at Sardi's at luncheon—only writers.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Benjamin Franklin spoke of "paying too much for a whistle" . . . and frankly . . . there is always the temptation to pay the highest price for the obvious things . . . and try to "make up" . . . by spending as little as possible for those which are not predominant.

ANOTHER SIX-DAY NOVEL

by JOHN MURRAY GIBBON

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

RENEWING a friendship which began during a shipwreck at sea, Maurice Arden, youthful artist, Peggie MacLean, her brother Kenneth, and Jacqueline, famous Gypsy palmist, are dining at the latter's studio in New York. Peggie, at Jacqueline's suggestion, gazes into the crystal and sees a startling vision of a camp in the far-off Canadian Rockies, not far distant from the MacLean ranch. She recognizes two figures by the campfire as Dominic, renegade religious fanatic, and his chief follower, "Black Louis" Grant.

The fascinating Jacqueline in love with Maurice, reveals to him the plot of Senator Bonham, millionaire politician and leader to a crooked fortune-telling ring, to involve her with the police. She seeks Maurice's aid in a secret flight from New York, telling him of her arrangement with "Black Louis" to hide away at Hell Roaring Canyon, the spot seen by Peggie in the crystal vision.

The night before her departure, she, Maurice and the MacLeans are dining at a Bohemian restaurant. There they are joined by Miklos, Jacqueline's brother, who is famed as a violinist and who is in league with Senator Bonham. He suspects his sister's love for Maurice and plays a weird Gypsy melody which leaves all four with a feeling of some unknown calamity impending.

Next day Maurice sees Jacqueline off. She hints of her love for him but sobs that she is "too old, too old." In a sad farewell she tells Maurice that his happiness lies with Peggie. Kenneth MacLean, madly in love with the palmist, and learning later of her destination, is frantic to follow. Peggie decides to leave with him for their home which is near Jacquelne's retreat.

A few weeks later Maurice receives an invitation from Peggie to visit the MacLean ranch and decides to go. At Banff he engages "Skookum Bill," frontier character, as guide, and starts over the mountain trails to the MacLean ranch, planning to spend a week on the trail. The second day out his party meets up with the fanatic, Dominic, and one of his followers, "Sunday Ben." Dominic tells Maurice he is on a mission to chase "Devils" out of the country. "Skookum Bill" learns that the Indians have been killing their dogs as a "devil chasing" rite, and that Dominic suspects Jacqueline of being a sorceress. He imparts this information to Maurice who begins to fear for Jacqueline's safety.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER 5

PEGGIE had heard from a friend that Maurice and Skookum were near and she rode out to meet them.

She came upon them lunching by the roadside, Maurice bronzed by the sun into a new man. Yes, he was handsome, an honest face and eyes laughing with good humor.

Maurice envied Peggie the ease with which she swung into the saddle and the grace with which she rode.

As they rode the ten miles to the ranch, he told Peggie of his experiences on the trail, and his strange meeting with Dominic.

"So that is the way he went out!" she exclaimed.

Maurice continued:

"Skookum Bill is afraid there is trouble brewing—and for Jacqueline. If I hadn't been so anxious to see you again as quick as possible we might have stayed and followed them. Skookum thinks that Dominic suspects her of bewitching his guide, and the guide is of the same opinion. If they mean business, they won't have much mercy on her."

"What do you mean?" Peggie exclaimed, suddenly serious.

"Up north among the Dene Indians, Dominic is said to have used the lash."

"Horrible; horrible!" she cried. "He would never do that to Jacqueline!"

As they walked over from the corral to the ranch house, Mrs. MacLean came out to meet them.

"God be with you, the girl of my heart," she said, putting her arm round Peggie, and to Maurice:

"God be good to you, sir."

After an evening before a log fire Maurice slept till long after sunrise. He found Mrs. MacLean at work in her garden.

She had a gracious smile for him as she fastened a blue

MEMORIAL BILL FACES DEFEAT

Passed in the Senate, the Fish bill which nullifies the right of voters to instruct the Legislature to memorialize Congress on national issues now goes to the House, where its defeat is anticipated.

The bill was passed to the engrossment stage in the Senate, after sharp debate, on a roll call vote, 22 to 15. It was introduced after the Senate had carried out the voters' instructions in regard to memorializing Congress in favor of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment. At the time the Republican dry wing of the party were threatening to bolt and form a new party if the memorial were passed.

Its filing was regarded as a "sop" to the feelings of the outraged wets.

During the debate, Senator Faulkner of Pittsfield, protested against taking away from the citizens, rights they have enjoyed for 15 years. It was because the people desired to make the Legislature more responsive to their wishes, he pointed out, that the public opinion bill and the initiative and referendum were brought into being.

Among others to protest "this undermining" of the voter's rights were Senators Birney of South Boston, Conroy of Fall River, and Hurley of Holyoke.

Voting against the bill were: Bigney of South Boston, Brodbine of Revere, Buckley of Charlestown, Buckley of Dorchester, Conroy of Fall River, Faulkner of Pittsfield, Haley of Rowley, Hurley of Holyoke, Kinsley of Quincy, Mulhern of Boston, Nicholson of Wareham, Parkman of Boston, Tarbell of East Brookfield, Ward of Boston, Warren of Lawrence.

The Curious Quizzer

He Asks a Question and Pictures Those Questioned

THE QUESTION

Does daylight saving affect the bedtime of your children?

MRS. MARGARET JENKINS, mother of three—Yes. It is almost impossible to get the children to bed at their usual hour with daylight saving in effect. I think that every child under 10 years of age should be in bed by 8 o'clock at the very latest if he is to have a sufficient amount of sleep to enjoy good health. With the daylight saving plan in effect it does not get dark until after 9 o'clock and the children find it hard to sleep while it is still light.

MRS. MAE DORIAN, mother of six—My chief reason for disliking the daylight saving plan is because of the difficulty in getting the children to bed at a decent hour. During the winter months I do not let them go outdoors after supper but when daylight saving comes I have to let them out to play for a while after supper. They do not notice the time passing while the light remains and don't come home until it starts to grow dark.

* * *

MRS. GRACE E. LEARY, mother of seven—It certainly does. Why, I have a hard time getting them in to their supper on time let alone getting them to bed. It is not their fault. They do not realize that the time has been shifted an hour and of course they stay out after their time to come in the house. Their time schedule is not regulated by clocks as the older people, but by the ton.

time the light begins to fade.

MRS. JANE WALTON, mother of five—Of course. It is just as hard for the children to get used to daylight saving as it is for a person to get used to working nights and sleeping days. Goodness knows, it is a hard enough task for the mothers to get their children to bed now, and daylight saving makes it almost impossible. In the case of small children, they cannot sleep while it is still light and they lose over an hour's sleep on account of it.

New Type of Harbor Lighter Planned

Bids for the construction of a new and different type of harbor lighter for the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., for service in New York harbor, will be invited within a few days. Howard & Munro, naval architects of this city, have designed the craft, following a two months' study of various lighters at coast ports to obtain data on efficiency and economy of operation. Various captains of the company's steamers submitted ideas also, which have been embodied in the specifications.

The lighter, a decided advance over any of this type previously built, will be named Galen L. Stone, in honor of the former chairman of the executive board of the Eastern, now deceased.

Milton Man Hurt in Cycle-Auto Crash

William Schilling, 16, of Newton rd., Milton, was in a serious condition in Milton Hospital, after he had been thrown from his motorcycle when it was in collision with an automobile on Canton ave., near School st., Milton. His name was on the danger list. The automobile, police said, was operated by Patrick Bird, of Canton ave., Mi-

SLASHES THROAT IN CELL

Arrested because his idea of what the well-dressed man should wear did not appeal to a policeman who saw him alight from a taxicab clad in pajamas, Allen Burke, 24, of Babcock st., Brookline, attempted suicide early today in his cell at the Joy st. station.

Patrolman O'Hare was near Charles and Revere sts., when he beheld the pajama-clad figure descend from a taxi and start jauntily up the street.

O'Hare followed and, on overtaking Burke, questioned him regarding his novel apparel. Burke, the police say, announced that he was there to keep a tryst with a girl friend.

The policeman escorted him to the Joy st. station, where he was given a cell. A short time later, a policeman, making the rounds of the cells, found Burke lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

Investigation revealed a razor blade, which Burke had carried in the pocket of his pajamas. The man was rushed to Haymarket Relief Hospital, where physicians announced he will probably recover.

L Bill Redrafters to Meet Monday

The subcommittee of the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs, which is considering a proposed redraft of the Boston Elevated public control bill, will meet Monday at 11 o'clock, hoping that an all-day session will enable it to prepare the new draft and on the following day submit it to the whole committee.

MICHIGAN KILLS DRY PENALTY

Lansing, Mich., March 22—In the wake of the Legislature's act here in repealing the so-called "life for a pint" law, a movement was started today to win freedom, or new trials, for two persons serving life terms in Michigan State prison for minor liquor offenses.

One of these two, and the one for whom the greater sympathy is expressed, is a woman, mother of a number of children.

Under the new law, now repealed, all liquor offenders were subject to life imprisonment for a fourth offense.

Determined to carry that law to the limit, the woman, and a man who was tried later, were given the life term.

Under the statutes as they now stand, only felonies for which a maximum sentence of at least five years upon first offense is prescribed, now can result in life term sentences.

Humane leaders declared that the two serving life sentences under the "life for a pint" act should in all justice now be discharged or be tried anew. They argue that the repeal of the law is justification of the point that the law was unsound and unjust and unconstitutional.

Diplomacy Essential in the Conduct of Any Business

By B. C. FORBES

OMAHA, Neb., March 22—If you want to know how much your own city or any other city is going to grow during the next few years, get the telephone people to tell you. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company pulled the business boom better than any other organization in the United States has to make a comprehensive survey of the country and its communities.

B. C. Forbes

Its engineers and other organizations have spent months and millions of dollars in preparing data for the use of executives and investors.

Naturally, therefore, I called upon the Northwestern Bell Telephone executives here to find out how it is getting its territory in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. The information gathered is encouraging.

This company serves fully 1,500,000 people. Its executives confidently expect that by the end of this year Omaha, Mexico, Europe, Africa and Asia. Although general conditions in the local territory may not be quite so satisfactory there was a gain of more than 12,000 telephones last year.

Some of what the company thinks it can do look like gains of the most popular men in Omaha. He raises the people completely into the confidence and has decided that he cars exist for the benefit of the [illegible]. For example, he has been [illegible] to find out direct from the people what color they want their street cars painted. If that isn't diplomacy, what is?

Despite what cynics say, the people in this democracy do rule in the long run. It is not, therefore, thoughtfulness to win—to earn—the esteem and the good will of the people, the ultimate bosses of us all?

Diplomacy is doing the right thing in the right way at the right time. Diplomacy is becoming more and more essential in large scale business success.

Workers Need Diversified Investments; the G. E. Plan

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, March 22.

To an increasing extent, well managed corporations are offering thrift leadership to their employes.

Until a few years ago the employer assumed that his responsibility ended each week with the passing over to workers of the pay envelope. Not experienced in anything that many otherwise competent individuals were not skilled in handling their earnings. Accordingly, they were not receiving in utilizing value the benefits of higher wages. The surplus received was frequently used in the purchase of luxuries.

President Owen D. Young, of the United States Steel Corporation, the Du Pont enterprises and scores of others during the war have undertaken in organized form to offer their own shares to employes on convenient terms. The General Electric Co. went a step further. It took the position that the way to earn, and to make the same token, only a small investor, needed no explanation, and that, accordingly, even a premier single industrial stock did not fully meet the thrift requirements.

Accordingly, in 1923, the company set up the General Electric Employe's Securities Corporation to handle the savings of the General Electric employes. The corporation, incidentally, is now the largest single holder of General Electric stock. As a result of the tremendous market appreciation in General Electric shares, 85 per cent of the present resources (at current market prices) is in General Electric stock, although a substantially smaller amount of the original investment was placed in this security. Although the General Electric plan of diversification is unquestionably sound, it is nevertheless a fact that purchases of General Electric stock exclusively would have been more profitable for employes. However, that policy would have entailed speculative elements, and the company looks upon the employes' need as a purely investment one.

The employes' company is heavily interested in preferred shares of electric public utilities, a business concerning which General Electric executives are particularly well informed. The parent company contributes to the securities company the benefits of its expert knowledge concerning investments and also the fruits of its wide contacts. It obviates the cost of turning over their employes to strange investment dealers. The total fund now exceeds $50,000,000. Thirty-four thousand employes are participating in this investment enterprise.

Some companies make stock available to employes at marked price concessions. Employes of Montgomery, Ward & Co., for example, had an opportunity to participate in the dramatic rise of that company's stock last year. Sears, Roebuck & Co. contributes a percentage of profits to the stock purchase fund of employes and, accordingly, some employes who have received only small weekly salaries retire with nestegg of $100,000 or more. The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company regularly offers stock to employes free from brokerage, price and attaches no strings to the deal.

Only the best grade of stocks is suitable for investment by workers, and a responsibility rests on employers to offer such shares to employes only on a basis that reflects investment values, and not from outside speculation. In this connection, it is the policy of the Standard Oil companies to contribute one-third of the purchase price. The company contribution in effect constitutes a margin which serves essential purposes minimizes the possibility of loss.

Theoretically, there is a lack of diversification when a worker puts all his savings in a company in which he also depends for his weekly pay envelope. Conceivably, a disastrous flood result in a simultaneous layoff and cessation of dividends. Nevertheless, the General Electric plan of diversification is especially praiseworthy. Where an employe has not much surplus outlet for his funds, he ought to keep a substantial cash reserve in the savings bank.

Incidentally, those who are eligible to participate in certain of customer stock purchase plans will find such avenues relatively attractive, having regard to the opportunity in Wall Street, under which brokerage carrying charges are now investing out of income might well avail themselves of these special offers. A number of great public utility systems will buy their own stocks in the open market, purchase from outside investors and one or two bond houses will sell issues which they underwrite on the installment plan.

At a time when State guarantees of bank deposits is passing out of vogue, a number of New York financiers, in co-operation with the State Banking Department, have in a matter of moral obligation to the community undertaken to salvage the deposits of the defunct Bankers Trust Company. A new bank will soon be started as a co-operative enterprise by outstanding New York financiers, and it will assume the deposit liabilities of its predecessor. Though the new bank will be undertaken as a matter of business not philanthropy, it suprises from a desire to protect the good name of the New York money market.

ANACONDA AND RUMELY SELL HIGHER

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange today ignored the advance of brokers' loans to a new high record, as announced in yesterday's late editions of the Boston Evening American.

Traders instead breathed a sigh of relief over the simultaneously announced action of the Federal Reserve in New York declining to raise the rediscount rate.

Advance Rumely common sold up $3.50 at $97.50. Anaconda Copper rose $2.50 a share. Calumet & Arizona was up $3.

General Motors added $1.75 a share. Wright Aero sagged $2.50.

Goodyear added $1.30 a share. Consolidated Gas of New York tacked on $1.25 a share. U S Steel was up $1 from its day's low.

There may be no leak from the Reserve Bank in New York—but there is a surprising accuracy to estimates as to brokers' loans around the street after 2:30. Three different sources estimated the increase as $16,000,000 as the last figured, declining a half-hour before the close. A few minutes after 4 o'clock the Reserve Bank issued its "official statement" showing a gain of $166,000,000 to a new high record of $4,703,000,000. Just before issuing the statement the directors sent out word there was no change in the rediscount rate. They took a little longer to reach their decision than usual this week as the huge gain in loans showed that the Reserve has failed to correct the speculative credit situation, although a month has passed since its "warning." The amount of the increase forces food for deep thought to traders.

New York Curb Prices Display a Mixed Tone

New York, March 22—National Dairy Products sold at 45½, down 1¾, in the Curb market today. Servel was up ¾, at 18¾; Fox A down ½, at 29¾; Canadian Marconi up ¼, at 8¾; Cities Service down ¼, at 121¾; Continental Oil down ¾, at 25½.

Auburn Auto sold at 177½, off 1½; Electric Bond & Share 89½, off ¾; Transamerica Corp. 142½, up 2¾; Un. Aircraft, 83⅜, off 7⅛; Gulf Oil of Penn. 159¾, up 2.

Ford B Stock May Be Exchanged for A

Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., states that the new class "B" stock in the proposed recapitalization plan, will be transferable as "B" stock on the Canadian company's books and may be exchanged for "A" stock at the option of the holder. Except for dividend privileges and the voting power which is vested solely in the "A" stock, "A" and "B" stock will be alike. Company is not applying to have the "B" shares listed but it is pointed out that there is nothing to prevent their being traded in. The Class "A" stock will be listed.

Connecticut Life Declares an Extra

Atlantic Refining Co.

One of the World's Largest Manufacturers of Gasoline and Oils

New York Curb MARKET

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

The Atlantic Refining Co. was incorporated in Pennsylvania away back in 1870, the year when the last of the eleven states which seceded again became a member of the Union.

It is engaged in manufacturing and selling all products made from petroleum.

Last year saw the oil industry considerably disturbed because of crude oil over-production and consequent low prices for crude and refined. By reason of its being a "complete cycle" in the industry, Atlantic Refining was able to show earnings of $7.72 a share on its new stock, comparing with only 46 cents a share on the same stock in 1927.

Atlantic Refining was formerly one of the subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. It was segregated in the grand dissolution of December, 1911.

The company has become one of the world's largest manufacturers of gasoline and lubricating oils. Its main refinery, in Philadelphia, covers 700 acres, being more than 14 times as large as Boston Common. This refinery produces about 50,000 barrels daily.

It has a 200-acre refinery at Franklin, Pa., with a 10,000-barrel-a-day output. It has plants at Brunswick, Ga., and Pittsburgh. It owns or leases distributing stations in several states, including Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Subsidiaries engaged in production of crude oil are found in Venezuela, Brazil, Bolivia, Colombia, Mexico and in the mid-continent fields. Its refined output was marketed in 1928 to the extent of nearly one and a quarter billion gallons.

Atlantic Refining's funded debt is approximately $24,500,000. It has two classes of stock. Its $100 par 7 per cent cumulative preferred totals $20,000,000 and its $25 par common stock is $100,000,000 authorized, with a half of that amount outstanding.

The preferred has paid dividends since it was issued many years ago.

Dividends on the common were paid at a 20 per cent annual rate from 1914 to 1922, when a stock "melon" of ten for one was distributed. In 1923 4 per cent was paid and in 1924 the dividend was 2 per cent. Payments were omitted then until 1927, when 3 per cent was paid, the same as last year.

In the final quarter of 1928 a four for one split-up was ordered, and the stock placed on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share. An extra of 25 cents a share in the first quarter of 1929 is taken to mean that a $2 rate is likely this year, expected to be better for the oils than 1928. Betterment hopes are based largely on efforts to achieve curtailment that will check overproduction.

Directors of the Atlantic Refining voted to retire outstanding $20,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock at $115 on May 1 and to offer stockholders of record April 1 the right to subscribe to new common stock at $40 a share in ratio of one new share for every three shares held.

First quarter earnings this year should show substantial gain over corresponding period in 1927, when balance of $1,006,000 was shown for the common, as gasoline prices since January 1 have been about one cent a gallon above first three months of last year.

When the next bull market in the oil stocks gets under way, Atlantic Refining is entitled by reason of earnings and apparent future prospects to give an excellent account of itself.

(This article is one of a series to deal with leading "Blue Chip" and other representative stock issues. The next article in the series will appear in the Boston Evening American's Financial Section shortly.)

REVOLT TIES UP SHIPPERS

NEW RECORD FOR PNEUMATIC

The revolution which broke out in Mexico on March 3 is interfering seriously with the shipment of fresh vegetables from that country into the United States, in southern Sonora and northern Sinaloa many railroad bridges have been destroyed and the disorganized railroad will take considerable time. Until these repairs are made, shipments will be small. It is doubtful whether the railroad companies will send refrigerator cars into Mexico during the disturbed times, the United State Department of Agriculture advises. Tomatoes will be much affected, since the great bulk of Mexico's tomato crop is grown in Sinaloa.

Growers and shippers in Mexico will unquestionably suffer heavy loss in shipment of vegetables, consisting of 54 cars reached the border at Nogales when the revolution began. In the following week

AIRPLANES TO CUT RAILROAD SCHEDULES

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

From Maj. Charles P. McCullough, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, i learn he considers air transportation co-operative rather than competitive, from the railroad point of view. He says Penn's rail-air transcontinental service is expected to be started about July 1. Maj. McCullogh explains the Pennsylvania Railroad's plan of coordinated rail and air transportation is based on the idea of train by night and plane by day. Such service cuts a transcontinental trip to approximately 48 hours, instead of nearly 4½ days by fast train today.

MAJ. CHAS. E. McCULLOGH

Maj. McCullogh spoke in Boston before the Traffic Club of New England this week. The Pennsylvania last year achieved the distinction of being the first railroad operating outside of New England to secure official listing on the Boston Stock Exchange.

One of my friends happened to have an odd number of shares in Standard Oil of Indiana, for control of which the Rockefeller and Stewart forces lately waged a lively little war. He has just received his part of the "stock melon," and, as this was a 50 per cent stock dividend, one might imagine he would get a half share. But that is where the calculators' squad of 1929 puts in appearance. He is sent a certificate calling for exactly 491,692-83,333 of a share. This is actually a little over half a share as you may be able to ascertain with a very little figuring. It may be necessary to call in Dr. Einstein to get the exact figures on final capitalization after the current distribution is accomplished.

It is believed negotiations will be undertaken for purchase of a French company. Citroen and Peugeot are mentioned. Along with the General Motors invasion, the Ford progress continues.

Gasoline taxes afford an index to trends, valuable to a certain degree, on the other hand, the weather itself is an important factor affecting gasoline sales. Commissioner Henry F. Long reports a 5 per cent increase for February as compared with January. Comparisons with February a year ago is impossible, as the Bay State then had no tax on gasoline.

Considerable mystery surrounds reports of "artificial cotton." Some say it is "cotton" made from plants roots, others that it is the product of a member of he milkweed family, so familiar in all New England. Acting Botanist S. F. Blake of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, tells me: "About a dozen different kinds of milkweed occur in New England, but the commonest one is Asclepias syriaca, which is known as common milkweed or silkweed. This plant is common in fields, roadsides, and waste places throughout New England. It is a stout perennial herb, usually about three feet high. The leaves are opposite, oblong, without teeth, smooth above, and grayish wooly beneath, and are about six inches long and two or three inches wide. The usually purplish flowers are borne in one or more rounded clusters on slender stalks, and are about half an inch wide. The flowers are succeeded by pointed pods about four inches long, woolly, covered with soft spines and containing a large number of brown seeds with tufts of silky hairs at one end. One will find a full botanical description and illustration of this plant in Britton and Brown's Illustrated Flora, volume 3, page 30. This work can be found at the Boston Public Library.

Braves Tilt With Red Sox in St. Petersburg Today

BRAVES ANGLING FOR GOOD OUTFIELDERS

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 22—Bill Carrigan and his Red Sox, quite a ball team from the reports that trickle in, drifted in today for the annual Southern clash with the Braves.

This, of course, is just one of those exhibition curtain-raisers.

But none the less and never the same, Manager Bill and Manager Judge Fuchs will both try to grab it.

This fray will be looked on as a comparative test of the two Boston teams, no matter how foolish that idea may be from the viewpoint of an expert, if there is such a thing. Both arrays will have their spring best on show, and it should develop into quite a diamond war.

The Braves are ready to play baseball now, with the exception of a weak outfield. Measures toward strengthening that are under way, but as the judge says, it's awfully hard to buy or trade for anybody who is worth the price of his royal cheese.

Tris Speaker is in town, and Spoke, who manages the Newark team, may do some business with the judge. Tris is looking for a catcher and the Braves have some six of them hanging around. That's too many.

The grey eagle claims he has a couple of future big league flingers, so the clubs may make a deal. Any prospective star would help right now, for there are several young men who will get more or less regular jobs that hardly deserve the same, unless somebody is netted.

GOWDY LOOKS GOOD

Speaking of catchers, remind us that it would not be surprising in the least if Hennery Gowdy, one of the board of strategy, was in Brave hits there receiving when the season opened. Hank looks like a pretty good bet for the opening game.

Judge Fuchs will concentrate plenty on winning that opener.

He knows the value of a flying start to a young ball club. And Hank is one of the smartest receivers in the well-known business. He can handle young or nervous pitchers to the queen's taste, and he's a wise owl in back there.

His rubber arm still has the old rifle accuracy, and in batting practice lately, he has been riffing the onion much harder than any of the regulars.

When a coach steps up and takes his cuts, it means but one thing, that he's getting ready to step in and play in case of emergency. The Tribal team hasn't settled down yet. There has been too much bad fielding and uncertainty. An old-timer like Mowrey would be like oil on the turbulent waves.

Nick Flatley

REGULARS ON JOB

All the Brave regulars were back in today. A few of the boys had a Thursday vacation. Looks as if the judge was resting his best bets up for the Carrigans, who had sent along word that Morris, Ruffing and Russell would pitch this afternoon, which appears to mean business.

Small Bernie James will be given plenty of toil for the rest of the exhibition series. He looked like a regular here in his first shot at his favorite position, second base.

He handled the ball cleanly and rapidly and pulled a couple of fine plays. He moves about instinctively as a good players seem to.

And he's a smart midget. He saw the ... a infield playing back in early part of the pastime, so he dropped down a bunk, and defeated ... And that was one of the two

RED SOX RECRUITS NO. 7

CHARLIE SMALL

Charlie Small, outfielder, bats left, throws right. Despite tackling youth from Lewiston, Maine, who was a pitcher at Bates College. He came down with Sox last year to try out as a hurler, and Carrigan put him in outfield because of his hitting ability. He was farmed out to Pittsfield where he hit well over .300 and fielded well.

JOE DUNDEE FORFEITS CROWN

Providence, March 22 (AP)—Joe Dundee's welterweight championship stood forfeited today by the championship committee of the National Boxing Association. Announcement of its action was made early today through Edward C. Foster, chairman, and was ascribed to Dundee's failure to post a required $10,000 forefeit to defend his title.

Foster said that the winner of the Jackie Fields-Jack Thompson fight in Chicago probably would be recognized by the association as champion.

Foster assailed the practice of champions and their managers in signing contracts for contests, some of which he said were advertised as title matches, although actually exhibitions, and declared the association was in a finish fight for a reform.

He asserted he had the support of boxing commissions in 27 states as well as those in Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania that are independent of the national organization.

Foster asserted he would do all in his power to prevent the Al Mello-Joe Dundee match at Boston next April unless Mello was allowed to weigh in under the welterweight limit. In that case it would be a championship battle.

M. G. A. Assigns Links for Title Play

By BILL GRIMES

Judging from the courses assigned for the various State championships, the Juniors and Caddies are held in high esteem by the Massachusetts Golf Association.

Charlie Eaton of the Winchester and Scituate Country Clubs will defend his Massachusetts junior title at Brae Burn. The Country Club will be the location of the caddy championship.

The Massachusetts amateur and the State championships will be played at Belmont Spring and Vesper, respectively.

LADS GET BREAK

Of course, Brae Burn and The Country Club are far better courses than either Belmont Spring or Vesper, and the Juniors and Caddies are naturally much elated over their good fortune, while the reverse is true of the senior championship contenders.

The Belmont Spring Country Club has undergone many changes in recent years. For a time the course was in wonderful condition, but for the past two years the greens have not been up to their old-time standard.

Fortunately the State open will be played in June, before Vesper has been baked to a crisp. But there is considerable work needed at Vesper before the course will be a fair test for deciding the open championship.

SCHOOLBOYS PLAY

Through the untiring efforts of Fred Corcoran there will be a New England Interscholastic championship played this season. The schoolboys will gather at the Oakley Country Club for a 72-hole medal play event on May 31.

The return of the Interscholastic championship is a step in the right direction, especially as all of the schoolboys in New England are eligible.

The old Interscholastic championships brought out such golfers as Francis Ouimet, Dick Kimball, Tony Colombo, Brace Evans and Ray Ouimet, and were in a large measure responsible for the present day interest in the game.

Championships held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Golf Association:

New England Interscholastic Championship, May 31, June 1, Oakley Country Club, Watertown.

Open Championship, June 3 and 4, Vesper Country Club, Lowell.

Amateur Championship, July 17, 18, 19, 20, Belmont Spring Country Club, Waverly.

Junior Championship, August 7, 8, 9, 10, Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton.

Caddie Championship, August 20, The Country Club, Brookline.

M'LARNIN AND MILLER TO MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

New York, March 22 (AP)—If they doubled Madison Square Garden's seating capacity there still would be plenty of fans vainly looking for tickets for the 10-round bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller tonight.

The enthusiasm stirred up by this return match seems to indicate that the faithful fan doesn't care especially what the boys are fighting for so long as they fight.

Miller and McLarnin are battling for no title; nothing in particular is at stake; but, unless all the signs and portents have been misread, they will give the spectators more thrills per minute than they've had all winter.

Fighting at 140 pounds, McLarnin will outweigh Miller by from six to eight pounds. The Vancouver Irishman has high hope of landing a welterweight title bout before the year is out and he won't be likely to get it if he fails to avenge the technical knockout defeat Miller plastered on him in Detroit last year.

Jimmy took a bad lacing in that match, but he has come back with a bang, his most recent feat being a two-round knockout of Joe Glick.

Bruins Favored to Win Third Go of Canadien Series

BRUINS, CANADIENS BATTLE TOMORROW

By BILL GRIMES

Overjoyed with the success they have had against Les Canadiens, the Bruins left for Montreal this morning for the final game or games of the divisional championship series which open in the Forum tomorrow night.

Playing the smartest type of hockey, the Bruins have now defeated the Flying Frenchmen in two straight games.

Nothing in the annals of Bruin-Canadien hockey compares with this feat, for the Canucks have had the Indian sign on the Boston outfit since the Adams team joined the league.

Cooney Weiland is the talk of the hockey world. Playing his first year of major league hockey, Cooney has won both games for the Bruins, in a series which few rookies have ever made a noteworthy appearance.

BRUINS NEED ONE GAME

The Bruins need but one game to eliminate the Flying Frenchmen. Despite the fact that the going in the second game was rugged, every man on each team is in perfect physical condition. They are all ready to get back into action again tomorrow night, and this game promises to be the equal of last night's battle at the Garden.

With two games tucked away, the Bruins are sitting pretty. And to make things even better, the fact that both games were decided by the score of 1 to 0 also favors the Bruins.

Any team which is on the short end of a 1 to 0 game can easily figure out many ways which it could have won that game if it had been recipient of a couple of breaks. For this reason the Canadiens are bound to bemoan their luck and this will not help them in the coming game or games.

The Bruins have been a revelation in this series. They have never been able to click against the Canucks, but apparently they have now become the jinx which has held away over them for years.

MORENZ GREAT

Howie Morenz gave the most spectacular exhibition of hockey ever seen in the N. H. L. last night. No player ever fought any harder to put over a victory than Morenz. He was on the ice and the fact that he failed to come through with two or three goals can be attributed to the great defensive play of the Bruins.

On four occasions Howie was inside the Bruin defense but every time some Bruin hit him just as he was about to drive home a shot which might have changed the entire complexion of the series. Twice Harry Oliver was the Johnny-on-the-spot, who eased Morens out of danger. Another time it was Dutch Gainor and then Eddie Shore.

Morenz was a streak. He dashed down the ice at lightning speed, cut with the quickness of a rat and let fly shots from all angles and off either foot. Regardless of his position he was seldom off line with his shots.

Without taking any credit away from any of the others, Howie Morenz was the feature player of last night's battle. And it will be years before such a performance as he gave will be duplicated.

PLAY FINE GAME

The Bruins played the same type of hockey last night as they did in the opening game but the battle was far superior to Tuesday night's affair. Harry Oliver and Perk Galbraith were wonderful. They took care of the Canadien wings to the king's taste, as did Tiff Clapper and Dutch Gainor. Then there was Bill Carson, who was a thorn in the side of the Frenchmen from start to finish.

The Bruin defense, Eddie Shore, Lionel Hitchman and George Owen did its share of the work and did it well. The checking was heavy and players were thrown to the ice with great force, but generally speaking the game was clean.

It is projected that tomorrow night's game in Montreal will be a battle from the jump. The play has been developing fierceness as the series has progressed. The boys will be out to avenge some of the jolts they have taken in the first two games and unless Cooney Sweaton and Bobby Stewart can rule with iron hands, trouble is sure to crop up, which may result in some players being seriously injured.

It is understood that the Bruins go resort to the same style of way they used here and if they are able to function tomorrow as they did in the first two games, there is good cause for the fans to plan to be at the North Station at 7:30 Sunday evening to give the Boston team the welcome they deserve for clearing up such an aggregation as the Canadiens in three straight games.

The Bruins are in better physical condition than the Flying Frenchmen. There is no question but that the heat here took its toll from the Frenchmen. Naturally they will be more at home in the Forum and of course, the larger playing surface will favor them.

But the Bruins should also be better in Montreal. Going from a warm to a cold climate will pep up the Bruins as well as the Canadiens and the games in the Canadian metropolis should go down in the annals of the National Hockey League as one of the greatest of all times.

TIGERS-REDS WAR IN ARENA

Boston Tigers and Providence Reds, bitter opponents for first place in the Canadian-American League throughout the season, will meet in a final struggle in the Arena at 8.30 tomorrow night.

The teams will be at full strength and each is out definitely to establish superiority.

On season's series the Reds hold the edge having beaten the Tigers four times and tied one game out of seven.

Tigers, however, spread-eagled the Reds in the last two games played, winning each of them, 4-1, one in Providence and one at the Arena.

Tigers worked out today in light preparation for the tussle. Roo Taylor, who has been on the shelf with a bad knee, is skating as fast as ever, and his return to full efficiency is a boost to the teams stock.

He did almost a full tour of duty against Philadelphia Wednesday night. Capt. Eddie Oatman was held out of that game, altogether, but will be available for service against the Reds.

Hazo Harrington, Gizzy Hart, Art Chapman and the rest of the buzzing Providence outfit, are traveling at the top of their form and Tigers will need all their resources to hold them in check.

The game will comprise half of a doubleheader, for between the periods a full account of the Bruin-Canadien game in Montreal, obtained by direct wire, will be given on the loud speaker.

A. T. Wiggin Track Captain at Norwich

Northfield, Vt., March 21 (AP)—Election of Arnold T. Wiggin of Portsmouth, N. H., to the captaincy of the Norwich track team was announced today.

Selection of Wiggin came after winners of minor letters had been permitted to vote to break a triple tie, that resulted in a poll of the major letter winners.

HOLD UP CANADIEN CUP DRIVE

SAVED!

Tiny Thompson made many wonderful saves in the second game of the N. H. L. playoffs between the Bruins and Canadiens. Tiny has done a great job in the Bruin net all season. And has gone especially well when each save meant a lot.

Williams Leader After Swim Title

Williamston, March 21 — Walter Schott of Evanston, Ill., varsity swimming captain at Williams College, will make an effort to regain the intercollegiate breast stroke championship at the annual Eastern intercollegiate meet at Princeton today and tomorrow.

He is the only member of the Purple team who will compete in the title event. Schott formerly held the intercollegiate record for the 200-yard breast stroke but his time has been bettered recently by Moles of Princeton, the present champion.

Fine Gym Teams War in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, March 21—McGill University, of Canada, and representatives from nine American universities and colleges will take part in the intercollegiate gymnastic championships here tomorrow, according to an announcement made by the Pennsylvania Council on Athletics.

J. H. Witzig, of New York University, member of the 1928 United States Olympic team, has been entered in the all-arounds.

The Army and Navy have entered their leading gymnasts.

Walter Johnson Not to Pitch This Year

Walter Johnson, for twenty-one years star of the pitching staff of the Washington Senators, will not be seen on the mound this coming season.

Believing his hurling days are over, he will be strictly a baseball manager. Johnson has a record of winning 417 games out of 801.

CAMBRIDGE AND OXFORD CREWS IN RACE

Putney-On-Thames, Eng., March 22 (AP)—Oxford and Cambridge conclude the first century of their historic rowing rivalry tomorrow morning.

One hundred years after their annual duel of oarsmanship was inaugurated, two gleaming, slender racing shells, one carrying the light blue colors of Oxford and the other the dark blue of Cambridge, will shoot from the shadows of Putney bridge just before noon. The 81st Oxford-Cambridge boat race will be under way.

The 80th renewal of the rivalry started in 1829, finds the two crews apparently well matched. Neither crew has shown any marked advantage during the training period. Of the eighty races rowed to date Oxford has won 40, Cambridge 39 and one, that of 1877, was a dead heat.

Cambridge would like to square the count for the first hundred years. Oxford wants to end the string of defeats she has suffered for the last five years and to retrieve the rowing honors which she has possessed, but seldom since the classic Thames event was revived after the World War.

With a heavier and more experienced crew Cambridge rules a slight favorite, but Oxford has shown marked improvement in the last two weeks. The Oxford crew averages about 166 pounds compared to 170 for Cambridge. The race is to start about 11:30 a. m.

The afternoon also will see the annual Oxford-Cambridge track meet at the Stamford bridge grounds in London.

Illinois A. C. Tank Team Out of Meet

Chicago, March 22 (AP)—The Illinois Athletic Club swimming team has been so weakened by the retirement of Johnny Weissmuller and other stars that it will not defend its senior men's national indoor championship in New York April 5-6.

Coach William Bachrach announced the team would be rebuilt for championship competion next year.

Sharkey Tunes Up For Stage Bouts

Jack Sharkey is training at Jim Toland's gym each afternoon for his stage appearance at the Keith Memorial Theater next week. Jack is working every bit as hard as he would for a regular bout.

"I am down to 195 pounds and will be able to show at my best during my exhibitions on the stage next week," said Sharkey. "If I wasn't right, it is possible one of my sparring partners might try to sneak over a haymaker."

Angel Guardian Nine Seeks Games

The House of the Angel Guardian high school baseball team is desirous of arranging baseball games with some of the small high school teams in the State. Captain Emile Couture, George Cavanaugh and a few others who played especially well last season will be back in the lineup.

School teams desiring games communicate with J. Duoin, House of the Angel Guardian School, Perkins st., Jamaica Plain.

Grand National Was Regular Parade, With About 66 Horses Running

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Gregalach Is Winner of the Grand National Race

EASTER HERO, WHITNEY HORSE, IS SECOND

[illegible] the traveling rival released the outside more swiftly and swooped on over the final quarter-jump.

It was the second successive year in which the winner of the Grand National was a favorite, almond finish neglected to the experts.

Last year [illegible] that won after [illegible] Billy Barton. A [illegible] candidate, had [illegible] jump while in the lead [illegible] other entries [illegible] hopes and riders by the wayside.

300,000 SPECTATORS

The crowd [illegible] Americans in the great throng of nearly [illegible] persons who watched [illegible] about as [illegible] end of the [illegible] $100 per cent American, Bill Parton, came up to pass him as they started the [illegible] second round.

But the American [illegible] Billy Barton [illegible] to be lost in the second and a wild gallop around [illegible] hazard-strewn [illegible] as horses and [illegible] together in a tangle of legs and hoofs.

Gregalach, by My Prince from St Germaine, won by six lengths.

BARLOW LED AT START

Flying into the lead at the start Billy Barton [illegible] rivers [illegible] three lengths at the end [illegible] only to lose his advantage when Easter Hero took his place in the van, galloping down the straight and taking the hazardous hedge and water jump in front of the stands beautifully.

The grandstand cheered this fine performance with many American whoops distinguishable.

But Bob Barton [illegible] on the far stretch.

GREAT SPECTACLE

It was one of the finest Grand Nationals ever run from a spectator's viewpoint, with the sun [illegible] ing in the course after heavy rains and the great field of bobbing [illegible] while most of the time [illegible] powerful glasses.

Barton was left from the [illegible] his sleek sides [illegible] Jockey Cullinan held him [illegible] Maryland's pride stood [illegible] posing for a photograph [illegible]

Easter Hero had been the favorite [illegible] one to one and was ridden [illegible] Maguire. The odds on Bostonian, owned by B. Mealmone, [illegible] and Scott, were 40 to 1.

The big race meant just about [illegible] to the winner the biggest [illegible] of the national one [illegible] sponsored by the Liverpool Stock [illegible] will net its winner [illegible]

Everybody in Liverpool seemed [illegible] to have a shilling or so [illegible] some horse or another in one of [illegible] various forms which the gambling took.

Heavy rain failed to keep crowds from the course.

Odds [illegible] 50 to 1 were laid against [illegible] of the runners by the bookmakers and 3 to 1 against Easter Hero or the other American entry, Bob Barton going the distance without a fall.

Seven American-Owned Horses Started in Race

Aintree, March 22 (AP)—American-owned horses competing in today's grand National Steeplechase were:

Billy Barton, owned by Howard Bruce, ridden by T. Cullihan.

Bright's Boy, owned by Stephen Sanford, ridden by T. Leader.

Mount Etna, owned by Stephen Sanford, ridden by T. Foster.

Drimmond, owned by J. B. Balding, ridden by J. B. Balding.

Bally hanwood, owned by M. D. Blair, ridden by Goswell.

Darrary, owned by A. C. Schwartz, ridden by G. Poole.

Billy Barton, however, is the only one of the horses which is American-bred.

Winner of Grand National Cost Owner $25,000

London, March 22 (AP)—Mrs. M. A. Gemmell, English owner of the winner of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree today, bought Gregalach for 5000 guineas, or about $25,000, in the spring of 1927.

This was the first race he had won under her colors.

B. S. A. GIRLS IN TITLE MEET

Boston's four Olympic track stars will make their last appearance before the New England track and field championships, at Whitinsville, tomorrow evening, in a New England title meet.

This meet will be the last big preliminary workout for the New England girl athletes before the great women's track meet at the Boston Garden, March 30th.

Mildred Wiley, B. S. A. track captain, will defend her running high jump title, and Katherine Mearls is defending standing broad jump champion.

Other B. S. A. stars are entered in the following events: N. E. A. A. U. running high jump, Mae Magill; Alice Morris, May Hammersley, Midge Phillips, Margaret Johnson and Rose Butler. N. E. A. A. U. standing broad jump, Rose Butler, Midge Phillips, Margaret Johnson, Mary Hammersley, and Fanny Maderia.

U. of Vermont Awards Letters

Burlington, Vt., March 21—Letter awards made by the Athletic Council of the University of Vermont and announced through the office of Graduate Manager Mayforth are as follows:

Varsity basketball—Capt. J. S. Estabrook, Brandon; T. J. Hallinan, Montpelier; H. M. Wallace, Port Henry, N. Y.; L. F. Palmer, Burlington; D. J. Bernstein, Hartford, Ct.; B. R. Morse, Burlington; Manager B. W. Gustafson, Proctor.

Johnny Mack to Lead School Ice Team

New Haven, Ct., March 22—Johnny Mack, of New Haven, son of the late Johnny Mack, known to hosts of Yale men through his work as track coach and football trainer was elected to captain the Hillhouse high school hockey team. He has played on the school team for two years, starring on defense. Young Mack is engaged in several sports at the local high school, his specialty being hockey.

If you need a home, have you a garage for rent? Tell about it and give location in the Want Rent Ads. That's the way to rent it.

Green Lacks Good Pitchers This Year

Hanover, March 22—Never was pitching material so scarce at Dartmouth as it is this spring.

Pereau has Johnny Marsh, Gunnar Hollstrom and Johnny Housman, but none of them can measure up to the standards set by Larry Van Riper and Bill Breckenridge, who left college to join the Philadelphia Athletics.

Johnny Parker has the right outfield berth clinched, and there will not be much competition offered Captain Walsh at third base.

Ed Jeremiah is working for the second base position. There are several candidates for the outfield, prominent among whom the Frank Foley, A. V. Raube and Ted Dezowski.

Williams Nine Has Poor Prospects

Williamstown, March 22—Williams College outlook in baseball this spring is only fair, despite the fact that ten letter men of last year's nine are available.

Unless the players improve considerably in their batting, Coach Fox will have a difficult time developing a winner. Williams had a disastrous diamond season a year ago, winning only one game.

Harvard Trio Wins

New York, March 22 — Harvard's pole team defeated the Yale team here in a match in the intercollegiate class of the title pole matches.

B. U. Golf Candidates Practice Next Week

Candidates for Boston University's golf team will be called out by Coach Fred Corcoran next week. The Pioneers will practice at the Woodland Golf Club in Auburndale and with such a fine course available and six veterans on hand, prospects for a winning team are good.

The present schedule calls for matches with Worcester Tech, April 26; Brown at Providence, May 8; Tufts at Medford, May 10; Harvard, May 15; Bowdoin, May 16.

Women War

Boxing contests among women are now held in Peking, China.

Amateur Ring Stars Shine at St. Joe's

Another all-novice tournament such as thrilled the crowd in Commercial Hall last Saturday will be staged there again tomorrow night by St. Joseph's T. A. S.

The Home of Action has housed many a great show, amateur and professional, but it is doubtful if any show ever measured up to the standard of fighting set last Saturday night. Bout after bout was sensational, and tomorrow night's tournament is expected to be just as thrilling.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a Hitchcock apartment and the best are advertised daily in the Far East columns.

CHOCOLATE BATTLES VACCA

Jack McVey Takes Scozza's Place Against Flynn in Garden Show

ERNIE SCHAAF, Fighting Viking, rules a favorite over Al Friedman for their 10-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

The rival heavyweights are in the best possible condition and are expected to furnish a torrid battle.

Jack Conway

It will be the second time Schaaf and Friedman have clashed. In a bout at the Arena in February, Schaaf received an unpopular decision over his Roslindale rival. Most of the fans who witnessed the contest were of the opinion Friedman had the best of the argument.

Some nights later Schaaf had Con O'Kelley on the verge of a knockout at the Garden when he lost the bout on a foul.

Schaaf will be in better condition tonight than when he last collided with Friedman. He plans to carry the battle to his opponent from the bell in the opening round and is confident he will crash through with a knockout.

Friedman, like Schaaf, is in razor edge condition. Al feels he can outfight the Phil Schloaberg entry as well as outbox him. The Roslindale warrior is presented with his first big ring opportunity and he intends to make the most of it.

Schaaf, at the time unknown outside of New England and Jersey, was the boxer selected to pose for the Tunney-Muldoon trophy which will be presented to the next champion. Ernie has an idea he will win this trophy.

THERE is unusual interest in the ring appearance of Kid Chocolate who will collide with Johnny Vacca in another 10-round bout. Chocolate is a Cuban and has proved a sensation in boxing bouts in this country. He is action every second he is in the ring. In addition, he is a terrific puncher.

Chocolate will meet some sturdy opposition when he mingles with Vacca. The twice conqueror of Fidel LaBarba always looked at his best when pitted against a youngster who will swap punches with him. Chocolate will find Vacca punches equally as hard as himself.

THE third 10-round event will feature Arthur Flynn of Lawrence and Jack McVey of New York. Lou Scozza of Buffalo was originally billed to mingle with Flynn, but it was necessary to secure a new opponent for the Lawrence warrior when Scozza was suspended by the New York Boxing Commission.

McVey is colored middleweight champion. He has done most of his battling in New York rings, where he is a good card.

Hy Diamond of the West End and Billy O'Leary of South Boston will step for six rounds. The fourrounders will bring together well-matched boxers.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"HOCKEY still has the town by the well known ears," said Mr. Boston today. "I find that perfectly law-abiding citizens, who seldom speak above a whisper in an ordinary conversation, get jammed full of whoopee and what not once a couple of hockey teams whirl into action.

"Last night at the Garden one pop-eyed individual leaped from his seat and crashed his hands down on my imported headgear every time one of the Bruins carried the puck a few yards. He went plum daffy on those occasions when the local outfit was within scoring distance.

"From my observations at the Garden and at the Arena, I find that hockey fans are the world's champion fanatics. They cheer wildly from the time the tussle gets underway until the gang starts for the exits. They don't require any serious provocation to cause them to release their pent-up energy.

"Nature must have equipped hockey fans with especially powerful lungs, as they can yell through an entire game without discomfort to themselves. The average baseball fan weakens about the fifth inning, while the fight mob usually tosses in the sponge as far as cheering goes after two or three frames.

"HOCKEY fans are the most unfair crowd of rooters in the world. I make this statement in due respect to my friends, Al Nickerson and Bill Kane, who may usually be found rooting for the Bruins.

"Hockey devotees can only see the home team. Its players are their heroes. They are always right, while the opposition is always wrong.

"I have a particular warm spot in my heart for the officials of hockey games. If they penalize a visiting player, they are cheered. If they put a home town star out of the lineup for a serious infraction of the rules, they are hooted.

"The officials are attacked when they blow a whistle while the home team is making an advance and booed if they fail to do so when the enemy forward line is whirling down the ice with the puck. "The crowds at hockey games remind me of the baseball fans in the South. I find the Southern fans always rooting for the home team and refusing to give the visitors any kind of a break.

"IN the midst of wild hockey finishes, I hear the fans talking about a proposed series of three games between the Bruins and the Tigers. The Bruins are in the big league of hockey, while the Tigers come in the next class. Yet there seems to be quite a few people who believe the Tigers would give the Bruins a run for the honors. Such a series of games would draw close to $100,000 at the Garden.

"The public would be glad to patronize the games, as they would furnish action and an opportunity for Friend Hockey Fan to get rid of the rest of his surplus energy."

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

In the five years Boston has had professional hockey, no game played here is entitled to be mentioned in the same breath with the Bruins' second victory over the Canadiens at the Garden.

For two periods, the Bruins and the Canadiens set the fastest pace and displayed the most rugged type of hockey ever seen in this or any other city.

It was but natural that the players displayed some signs of distress after the opening of the final period. After the terrific pace the Bruins and the Canadiens set during the first 40 minutes of play, it was a physical impossibility for them to flash in the final chapter.

Again, Cooney Weiland was the only Bruin to beat George Hainsworth. As was the case in the opening game of this divisional championship series, Cooney scored in the first period. Dutch Gainor was the young man who made it possible for Cooney again to take over the hero role.

From the first time since he stepped out in a regular game for the Bruins Cooney Weiland has shown himself to be one of the most alert players who ever represented Boston in hockey. And, it was his faculty of being at the right spot at the right time that gave the Bruins their second victory over Canadiens.

Bill Carson shared the honors with Weiland. Carson turned in his best performance of the season. He did some of the cleverest checking seen in the Garden and was responsible for the failure of the Flying Frenchmen to get off a clean break. Carson was all over the ice.

Tiny Thompson might have had a soft time in the first game but he was a busy young man last evening. In all probability Tiny saw a more varied assortment of shots fly off the Canadien sticks than he was ever called upon to stop in all his career.

The Flying Frenchmen drove shots at Tiny from every angle and how he managed to kick them all aside will always remain a mystery to the 16,000 persons who witnessed his sensational performance.

The Bruins were tendered a wonderful reception as they skated on the ice for the preliminary practice. They were greeted with wild volume of cheers, whistles, cowbells and many other noise making devices.

Before Tiny Thompson starts to play he spends about two minutes roughing up the ice in front of the pets.

Aurel Joliat admits that the jeers of the Boston crowd get under his skin. He is of the opinion that Boston fans are hostile towards him but although he is tendered the same treatment in other N. H. L. cities, especially Toronto, the adversity of the crowd never handicaps his playing, as it does in Boston.

Manager Sprague Cleghorn of the Newark Bulldogs completed a deal with Cecil Hart of the Canadiens whereby Nick Wasnie was sold to the Canadiens. Wasnie will strengthen the Flying Frenchmen's line and should display his best hockey with such a club.

For the second time this season, when Frank Ryan announced that the referees were Cooper Smeaton and Bobby Hewitson, a cheer broke loose from the crowd. Bill Stewart is the only other official so honored.

Just before the faceoff Cooper Smeaton called the players to the center of the ice and warned them that any defense man taking more than one step towards an opponent would be ruled off for charging.

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League watched the game from President Charles F. Adams' box.

Lionel Hitchman missed being seriously injured in the first period by the narrowest of margins. He started to chase Sylvio Mantha behind the Bruin net, and collided with the post. It was a very close call for the Bruin captain.

On the play which resulted in the Bruins' goal, Dutch Gainor was at his best. He started out by outfoxing Armand Mondu. Then, Marty Burke guessed wrong and was in for an open shot, which he got off but Hainsworth saved.

Distance Stars Enter Cathedral Run

Among the entries received for the 19th annual 10-mile run of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A., to be held on April 13, at 3 p. m., are those of Bennie Hern, James Zinck, Gus O'Neil of the Dorchester Club, Agnostino Signore, Newton high school, Martin Silver, Waltham A. A., and Tony Fernandes, Taunton, unattached.

Arrangements are being made with the police to have the route clear as much as possible and as usual the start and finish will be roped off and every effort will be made to protect the runners.

TO THOSE who have known the disappointment of mileage guarantees that mean running on smooth rubber a great part of the way, the DUAL-Balloon brings an entirely new experience—season-after-season of non-skid security—the greatest ever known.

With rubber prices rising and tires still priced on the old cost basis, why take chances of running on "bald-headed" tires.

MORE POWER AT NAHANT RADIO STATION SOON

The "Goofy Gadgets" down at the Nahant radio station of the coast guard were blissfully happy today because the base has been assured that their station soon to be equipped by the Government with the finest of recently developed wireless instruments.

The new equipment will permit the station to enjoy a key transmission range of 5000 miles and a voice range of half that distance which will permit code messages beyond the Atlantic stretch, and voice interchanges with ships almost across the sea.

The "Goofy Gadgets" are the men at the station and their expectation is that they will maintain the unbroken record of the station of never having missed an S O S call within range of the station's power.

PERSONNEL OF STATION

The "Goofy Gadgets" of the station [illegible] are Chief Radioman George A. Chute of Canton, First Class Radioman William H. Preece of California and Second Class Radioman Arthur W. Carey of Boston and Lincoln Winesky of Somerville have heard every distress call of the New England and Canadian coast in the last few years.

It was the Nahant station which intercepted the first message flashed by the destroyer Paulding after it had collided with the submarine S 4 at Provincetown.

Got VESTRIS CALL

When the Vestris sank off the Virginia capes, the Nahant crew picked up the S O S call and intercepted and logged hundreds of other messages which had a bearing upon the movements of the rescue raft.

More recently Nahant logged numerous messages in connection with the rescue of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida by the United States Line steamer America.

Two Acton Couples Married 55 Years

Acton, March 22—Two local couples celebrated their 55th wedding anniversaries. They are Mr. and Mrs. James Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac S. Ford. Neither couple had any public celebration of the occasion but relatives and friends remembered them with cards of congratulations.

HOOVER'S PLANS MAY BOOST TAXES

Washington, March 22—Prediction was made here today that President Hoover's plans of internal expansion would increase expenditures in his term of office to large figures, and further might result in an increase in federal taxation.

Washington officials saw in his plans the "good-by" kiss to the years of Coolidge economy.

Any tax reduction is unlikely, it is declared.

Large increases in federal expenditures are made necessary by government projects already provided by Congress, such as flood protection and naval building, by farm relief costs to be provided at the extra session, and by such development projects as inland waterways and Boulder Dam.

GAIN IN TAX RECEIPTS

The Coolidge administration was generally one of retrenchment. The time has come for expansion to keep step with the needs of the country. President Hoover has promised an administration of economy, but by very necessity unusual expenditures must be made for internal development in keeping with the times.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon is anxious for another tax reduction before he retires from office. Continuance of prosperity and resulting large income tax returns may make this possible, but it cannot be predicted.

Income tax returns for the first quarter are hopeful. They will be between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 more than for the first quarter last year, it was revealed at the Treasury, which will bring the total of March 15 payments close to $600,000,000. They were $515,000,000 for the first quarter last year. A similar increase is predicted for the next quarter.

Treasury officials predicted on the basis of this increase a surplus for this fiscal year of between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 instead of the $26,000,000 originally expected.

But the cost of government all around naturally will increase. The day of $5,000,000,000 peace-time budgets probably will come during the Hoover administration.

BIG APPROPRIATIONS

Appropriations of the last Congress totaled $3,821,649,122, which was slightly over $3,000,000 more than budget estimates.

Congress has authorized appropriation of $323,000,000 for flood control over a period of ten years, but an amount in excess of this is expected to be voted during that time. It authorized $274,500,000 for naval building. These are required expenditures. It is estimated that $300,000,000 or more will be voted for a farm relief revolving fund.

ROSE DISPLAY IT SHOW DRAWS THOUSANDS

Several thousand of the visitors flocking to the flower show at Mechanics Building this week are attracted principally by the large and unusually beautiful exhibition of roses. This exhibition is of special interest because it was omitted from the flower show in Horticultural Hall. It is ever thought that Boston's climate was not favorable to the successful cultivation of roses.

This year there is a magnificent display running the full length of Paul Revere Hall, ranging from the pure white Killarney to the deep crimson Templar. The glowing salmon pink of the long-stemmed Talisman stands boldly out among the paler Briarcliffes and Silver Columbines, the Yellow Butterfly with its tinge of pink and the coral Rapture shading into yellow.

Color harmony is the keynote of the whole show. One finds it illustrated not only in the exhibits of gardens and cut flowers, but also in mantelpiece and table decorations. Many a hostess stops to take notes on the exhibition of dinner tables with their varied arrangements of flowers and china. Among the most striking is that arranged by Mrs. John Taylor of Dedham, dull pewter ware on a deep purple table cloth a center vase of tulips of dull pink and purple shades offset by two smaller vases of lavender sweet peas and deep violet pansies.

Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot of Cambridge designed the most popular table an arrangement of amber glass on a beige lace tablecloth, shell pink candlesticks and a mass of spring flowers in soft, blending tones set off by purple iris.

SUIT TIES UP T. W. LAWSON ESTATE

A suit over a portion of the famous "Dreamworld" estate at Egypt, in Scituate, again brought the name of the late wizard of finance, Thomas W. Lawson, into the limelight today.

By action of Judge Bishop in Suffolk Superior Court, Lawson's heirs are enjoined from selling certain lots on the estate to anyone but Edward P. Neafsey of Brockton.

Neafsey brought a suit to compel the heirs to perform an alleged contract dated May 31, 1928, to sell to him 12 lots of the estate for $1600, on the basis of $25 down and the balance on the date of delivery of the deed. He claims that they have refused to go through with the agreement.

He states further that the agreement to buy contained a proviso that if he pay them $200 additional on the day of delivery of the deed he would have, for 18 months, the right to purchase the balance of the real estate except two lots and a portion of two others for the sum of $7500 above the $200. He claims that their failure to complete the contract has caused him to lose the chance of making a resale of the lots.

The defendants named are Douglas Lawson of Boston, Arnold Lawson of Scituate, Marion Lawson Lord of Brookline, Gladys Lawson Stanwood of Boston, Dorothy Lawson McCall of Prinville, Oregon, and Jean Lawson Edwards of Paris, France, and Arnold and Douglas as administrators of the estate of Thomas W. Lawson.

COOLIDGE AVE. NOT WANTED AS STREET NAME

After voicing vigorous opposition to renaming their street "Coolidge ave.," some residents on Fairview st., Dorchester, today were trying to think up a new name that would satisfy everybody.

Opposition to naming the street "Coolidge" developed at a hearing before the Boston Street Commissioners, at city hall.

All was going well in the meeting until someone made the suggestion that Fairview street be named after the ex-President. Instantly, several residents of the street were on their feet, protesting the move to such an extent that the motion was discarded for the time being.

The meeting at the City Hall was for the purpose of discussing the acceptance of several new streets and the resurfacing and renaming of others in the Ashmont section. It was attended by several hundre interested citizens.

Much stress was laid on the present deplorable condition of the streets in question, which are Elmyrd., Elm st., Helena rd., Burgoyne st., Wilcox rd., Guild rd., and Fairview st.

Among those present at the hearing who were in favor of the city going ahead with the street improvements were City Councilor Albert Fish, sponsor; Rep. Joseph Finnegan, Patrick O'Donnell, pastor of St. Anne's Church was present, but did not speak.

A new hearing on the extension and improvements on Fairview st will be held.

He Breaks Self-Shaving Custom After 41 Years

Brockton, March 22—Police Captain James E. Lays has just broken his long self-shaving record. For 41 years he had never gone into a barber shop—for razor treatment.

Then he decided to try a change from his own handling of his razor. He bearded a local barber in his "den." His friends say he was in a perfect lather of perspiration at the "ordeal." But he faced it finally.

"I'm in hot water," he is quoted as exclaiming. The barber won by a brush. He offered to "mug" the official—not rogues' gallery photography—but getting a nice china mug with his name all guildeafed around its exterior.

When it was all over, the barber had won by a hair—many hairs.

And Lays was out the tonsorial price—by a close shave.

Test Tomorrow for Hub Firemen

A smokeless test for the firemen of Boston who are familiar with smoke tests will be staged tomorrow morning at the Girls' high school, West Newton st., when the privates of the service gather to take the examination for the rank of lieutenant. The "smoke eaters" have been forbidden to smoke during the trial, it was announced on general orders issued by Acting Fire Commissioner Daniel F. Sennott.

MUST GIVE OUT ORIGINS APRIL 1

Washington, March 22—President Hoover was expected today to announce the fact that Atty. Gen. Mitchell has ruled that the chief executive must on April 1 proclaim the National Origins Immigration quota plan effective next July 1.

Mitchell declared the President had no other alternative. Hoover objects to the plan, it is said, and had hoped the ruling would be otherwise.

At the same time today the President will make, senators asserted a strong statement that the public saving just who in his opinion is inadvisable to put the National Origins quota into effect on July 1, and expressing the hope that the extraordinary session of Congress will either repeal or postpone the measure.

Conflict's End

JOHN took Irma s hands in his own and pinned her arms to her sides as he looked down into her misty blue eyes.

"I love you," he exclaimed. I've waited a long time. Can't you love me? Won't you marry me?"

"I don't see how I can, John, because—"

Where the use of wasting Irma Yorke chevelled a fellow's hopes too long. The years are passing. I doesn't mean to hurt you," added as she winced. "But won't you say—yes?"

Irma looked out of his grasp. There were tears on her cheeks. Again John tried to put his arm around her. "Wait—wait," she gasped. "I've got to be alone—I've got to think—please don't—John."

She fled from the living room. John dropped his hands with a hopeless gesture and sank into a chair in pain.

Throwing on a wrap, pulling down the tight little helmet that all but concealed her face, Irma fled down the stairs, like one under a spell. Straight to the park—straight to the weather-beaten bench beneath an ancient tree she went.

A fortnight on the path. Irma came out of her bitter-sweet reverie. In the gloom, only a shade less than darkness in the pale light from distant electrics, she made out the figure of a man. He did not see her until he was almost on the bench. "Pardon," said he in evident surprise. "don't mean to intrude—but may I sit here a moment or two? I'm a bit shy—besides, I have a good reason."

As he stood beside her in silhouette, Irma could see his bared head —his hat in hand.

But the moment he had spoken her heart had begun pounding. Then she grew cold with a sudden resentment. So he did come back from the war. Why hadn't she been told? Evidently he didn't recognize her. Well, she knew she'd changed a lot; besides it was quite dark and her face in shadow.

Yes," said she in a muffled voice, answering him at last.

"Thanks," said he, sitting at the other end of the bench.

For a while there was silence. She ignored him.

His shoulders drooped. Finally he turned to her.

"I said," he began explanatorily, "there was a good reason for wanting to sit here. "Mind if I talk? I've just got to—I've got to tell somebody. Misery loves to talk, you know. This with a sad smile, though she couldn't see that.

Another pause. Then he went on: "You see, miss, I used to meet a girl here—long ago—before we began tearing each other to pieces in Europe. Yes, this was our love bower, you might call it. It was here we planned the rosy future we were to have after we married."

Well—we didn't get married. I went to the war. I didn't have the heart to write her after I landed in the hospital over there. Gas shrapnel, all that stuff made a mess of me. Yes, I came back, but when I did, I didn't have the nerve to let her know, to ask her to take a relic of the big scrap—broken and broken. I thought the least I could do would be to wait—until I mended myself, physically and financially. Oh, I know she would have insisted upon marrying me—out of sympathy. I couldn't do that —could I?"

He paused as though waiting a reply. The girl said nothing.

"Well—I couldn't even get my old place back. They gave a fine job of mending me in a Government hospital, but I couldn't seem to make a go of getting a new start in the business world. I started West—from city to city—busied lending a hand here and there. But the good job was as elusive as ever.

"I wanted to write her—but what was there that I could write a girl like her? Finally, I did get the job—but a long, long while had passed. I wrote. No answer. As soon as I could I came here to look for her. Not a trace. She and her mother had evidently moved several times. Maybe she thought I was no good at all. Maybe she's married, how do I know? Anyway, it's all over—I can't find her—it's the end."

He dropped his face in his hands. The girl started, sat bolt upright. Her heart was singing.

She turned to him. "David!" she cried.

He sprang to his feet, confronted her. Then, with a joyful cry, took her hands, tried to peer into her face as though he could not believe she were real.

"It's a miracle!" he exclaimed. "Why—why didn't you say something, Irma, when I began to confess? Are you angry—are—you?"

"I thought—" Irma faltered, but he cut her off.

"Never mind, sweetheart, we'll bury all the heartache and misunderstanding. I guess I should have let you know."

"Nothing matters now, David—now that I've got you."

He sat down beside her, took her in his arms. For a moment they sat there in bliss, forgetful of all

Martha Lee Tells of Feeding Children

Doctors talk a good deal about malnutrition nowadays and many mothers have asked me how they can tell whether their child is undernourished or not.

Ask yourself these questions about your youngster: Does he seem delicate, lacking in vitality, listless, nervous, fretful? Does he tire easily? Does he slouch forward with drooping shoulders instead of standing straight? Is he, though never really sick, never quite well?

Martha Lee
© Boston

And, most important of all, is he right in weight? These are symptoms of the child threatened with malnutrition. Such a child has no reserve and unless put on the road to health may grow into a physically weak adult.

Of course, food is the most important element of the child's building material and proper feeding the foremost factor in his health. The healthfulness of fruit has long been recognized, but until the discovery of vitamins, its real value was little appreciated.

Oranges are especially rich in vitamines and doctors agree that it is the ideal fruit juice for infants as well as older children. Orange juice is easily digested, and its salts and acids form the best natural acid laxative that physicians know.

It is a preventive of children's disorders, due to sterile or deficient food, and, best of all, all children like oranges. Orange juice helps to build up a sound, healthy bone-and-muscle structure, and when given to a baby early in life helps to give the child the right start.

In addition to the orange juice, oranges can be served to children as a side and desserts that are easy to prepare. A large orange furnishes 100 calories in food value and is a valuable addition to the school lunch basket.

Oranges and lemons are really bottled in Mother Nature's own perfect container, a germ-proof package. Mothers who help their children to form the orange habit make no mistake. Indeed, Mother can well acquire the habit herself for oranges will furnish her as well as the children with organic salts and acids that are excellent appetizers and aids to digestion.

Although lemons and oranges are known as acid fruits, they have an alkaline reaction when taken into the system and so are valuable in offsetting excess acidity due to our regular foods such as meat, fish, eggs, and fruit, which though essential are acid-producing.

Remember that from the time the tiny baby first requires a food other than its regular rations of milk until the child is fully grown and long after that, the child requires an extra citrus fruits is building health. The busy mother will find a simple fruit dessert easy to prepare and well liked by the child, and she is sure that it is healthful not only for the child but for all the members of her family.

Here are a few simple dessert suggestions:

LEMON TAPIOCA SHERBET
WITHOUT FREEZING

¼ c. quick-cooking tapioca.
1 c. sugar.
2 c. water.
Juice 3 lemons.
2 egg whites.

Put tapioca, sugar and water into double boiler, and cook, stirring often, until clear. Three minutes before removing from fire, add lemon juice. When cool and beginning to thicken, add the stiffly beaten egg whites and beat well. Serve with boiled custard or milk.

BAKED ORANGE CUSTARD

3 egg yolks.
1 egg white.
¼ c. sugar.
Few grains salt.
Grated rind 1 orange.
1¼ c. milk.

Beat yolks and white of egg until light; add sugar, salt, grated orange rind and orange juice. Scald milk in double boiler; pour gradually, while stirring constantly, over egg mixture; pour into buttered custard cups, placed in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven until custard becomes firm.

ORANGE BREAD PUDDING

1 c. bread crumbs.
2 c. scalded milk.
1-3 c. sugar.
2 tbsps. butter.
2 egg yolks.
Juice 2 oranges.
Grated rind 2 oranges.

Soak bread crumbs, butter and scalded milk 30 minutes; then add egg yolks, beaten with sugar and orange juice and rind. Pour into a buttered pudding dish, and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Cover with meringue.

LEMON BAVARIAN CREAM

½ c. sugar.
2 egg yolks.
1 tbsp. cold water.
½ c. lemon juice.
½ tsp. gelatin.
2 egg whites.

Put one-half the sugar and lemon juice in double boiler; when heated, pour over egg yolks, beaten with remaining sugar; return to double boiler, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add gelatin, soaked in cold water; beat occasionally, until cool. Fold in egg whites, beaten stiff, and cream, also beaten stiff.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

"Reno"; America's Mad Dance of Divorce

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT Jr.
CHAPTER 23

FELICIA'S impassioned plea that he take her away from the ugliness of the divorce colony stirred all the fineness of Dick Stuyvesant's nature.

"Darling," he chided, seizing her shoulders, "you mustn't let things like this upset you; we can't hope to shut out the ugly things all the time—"

"Try and do it!" Her young voice was bitter.

"We can do better than that!" His response was quick, his tone desperately earnest. "We can see them, know them—and, at the same time, escape them. For, after all dear, everything in life is only what we make it. Beauty or ugliness, love or hate, they're all born and they all grow in the same place—in your own mind. Keep your mind clean and healthy and happy and you can look out on all the world and find it good."

"Not in Reno!"

"Why, do you realize that there are more churchgoers in Reno in proportion to population than in any city in California? Do you know that in Reno, where a permanent resident can complain about his breakfast coffee and divorce his wife before one has time to make a fresh pot, there is virtually no divorce among the natives?

"Do you know Reno is the center of the greatest gold-and-silver-producing area in the United States? That it ships thousands of dollars worth of wool to the East every year? That Nevada is one of the richest states in America in natural ——? That—"

"Dicky, you sound like a real estate salesman!" Felicia broke in, smiling at his earnestness.

He laughed. "I'm not trying to sell you real estate, dearest. I'm trying to sell you happiness, real happiness, the only kind that counts—the kind you build your self in your own heart." re paused. Then: "I love you. And you love me. That's true, isn't it?"

She did not look at him. "I suppose so."

Dick laughed. "You suppose so! Felicia—look at me!"

Before the faith, the force of love which she saw reflected in his eyes, her breath caught. "Oh, Dick —do you really love me so? Will you love me always?"

"Forever!" he told her. "You know that, my dear!"

"Yes!" she whispered.

"The world can't be wholly bad, Felicia!"

"N-no-o"

His face sobered. "But I do feel as though our happiness depended on your understanding. We have everything, Felicia—love such as few people ever know—and I want us to be—well, darn near perfect!"

Her fingers touched his hair, gently. "You are, Dicky boy—darned near perfect!"

"Well—so's Reno!" he blurted, boyishly enthusiastic. "Darn it all Felicia, I like the place!"

She laughed. "Darling, if you've decided that we're to settle there, I suppose we will!" she told him. Then she added, "you needn't worry anyway, for Mother's hunting a place to buy. Sam Lanier's driving today. He's on the track of a place for her—some people who are going away. They'll leave their whole organization—servants, cowboys, everything."

Sam was waiting when they returned to the house, but J. B. and Adrienne Henley-Martin were nowhere about.

"Those two!" Felicia shook her head, in mock disapproval. "Have you seen Alex, Sam?"

"The nurse is washing him off—he tumbled off his pony into a mud-hole. Didn't hurt him any!" He laughed. "That kid's a regular westerner! Save one of the cowpunchers has been teaching him to rope."

Felicia laughed. She liked Sam Lanier—and he was part of the Reno Dick had meant. Sam and the Hodges, Judge and Mrs. Cooper—oh, she had made good friends out here!

"Can you two know young Norton, up at the University?" Sam asked them.

Felicia puzzled. "Oh, of course! That's the young professor who talked so much about Mosaic law and everything, Dick!"

"He's raising merry war—if you'll excuse me, Miss Brett. Seems he ran into a bunch of students at some roadhouse—they were hitting the liquor pretty hard—and he's announced that he's going to clean up the University!"

Felicia flushed at the mention of students. "Well—it needs it!" she said.

"He's got this girl of Dr. Hodge's in tow—"

"Peg!" Felicia exclaimed, incredulously.

"Yes, ma'am! And they're starting a purity league all their own. He's young and the gang likes him —I don't know but what maybe he'll get away with it!"

Felicia was silent. Did Sam mean that Norton had fallen in love with Peg?

"Do you want to run out and look over that ranch-houses?" Sam inquired. "You'll have to decide right quick what you're going to do—"

Felicia decided "right quick," almost the instant she set eyes on the low log houses, nestling in a valley among giant trees, near Washoe Lake.

The Adventures of Great Detective Recounted

CHAPTER 5.

Old King Brady calls on Nutroff, a real estate dealer on Second ave., and shows him a forged note signed by one of the loan sharks. They call him to Nutroff's office and bluff him into making a confession.

After Harry and Alice left on Hilda's trail, Old King Brady went down on Second avenue to call on a real estate and insurance agent whom he had known formerly as a court interpreter—a Russian by the name of Nutroff. He stated his business briefly. "I am working on a case which involves Isaac Grab. Do you know him?"

"Very well. He is one of the worst of the loan sharks."

Old King Brady then told him all he knew of the case involving Alexis and his father.

Nutroff professed to know nothing about Winsky boy, but he said, Hilda can lie to beat the band. I supposs she wouldn't give you her father's address?"

"No, indeed. But do you think you can get it for me?"

"I can if you will let me use the note or the copy. It isn't generally known but Grab had a partner and I'd like to bet that he is the man who got that note discounted if he did not make it himself. His name is Jake Nogatief."

"Has he been pulled?"

"No, and what's more, he won't be. May I see the note and the copy you had made?" Old King Brady produced them. Nutroff studied the two notes for several minutes and then asked who made the copy. Old King Brady did not know except that it was done by an ex-convict to please him.

Nutroff went to his safe and presently laid a cancelled check signed by Jacob Nogatief before Old King Brady. The handwriting was identical with that of the note.

"They play into each other's hands and they surely must have quarreled, or Nogatief would not have allowed Grab & Company to be raided."

"This is interesting. I'd like to see that note paid. There should be something in it for you, Nutroff." Old King Brady turned to the note, pointed and called up Inspector Black. "Ten per cent if you can put it through," he reported.

"It's worth working for," chuckled the agent. He looked the old detective over. Old King Brady was wearing his long blue coat with the brass buttons, a flat old-fashioned derby and stand-up collar, with the big white felt hat with a wide brim. "Most everybody knows you at least by sight. I'll send for Nogatief. You wait here."

"All right, the man is the real maker of the note Hilda has probably tipped him off already."

Nutroff scurried up his rivals for such these men were, and in a moment announced, "He's coming. I knew he would. The fool not to disguise his handwriting."

In a few moments a tall man wearing a high hat and a heavy black beard, came charging in. The prosperous East Side foreign politician was written all over him. He gave a start when he saw the old detective, but he came on in.

"Well, Nutroff, what is it?" he demanded.

"Sit down," said Nutroff, and pushed a copy of the note across the table. "What's it worth?" he asked. "Mr. Brady wants me to discount it."

"I'm sure I don't know why you ask me. Why don't you go to Grab —if you can find him?" replied Nogatif.

"Well said," Nutroff looked at him shortly. "But we have found his partner. Perhaps we can do business with him. You are the man."

"So you say. The proof," hissed Nogatief across the table.

"I can prove it, Nogatief" said the old detective. "I can produce a list of loans made by—us to you, while the cash came through Grab's hands."

"No proof. This appears to be a frame-up," said Nogatief, "what is your demand, gentlemen?"

"I am proposing to discount that note and want you to endorse it," said Nutroff.

"Never." All this time Nogatif had not seen the original, only the copy. "I'll not endorse it and you can't blackmail me into it," he said sulkily.

"Enough said, then. You can go the route with Grab evidently. Let us get our heads together and see if we can't plan to force him out. I have no quarrel with you, Mr. Nogatief, but that note has to be taken up by someone or there will be trouble."

Nogatief sat silent for a moment. "Propose your plan," he said finally.

"Give me Grab's address. I intend to talk to him about it. He has the note and that certain other things have to be done which don't concern you. Write me a line of introduction and mention that if he don't give up for the paper you will have to."

"You have me cornered," Nogatief said at last. "He is living at 18 Rapelyea place, Laurel Hill."

"Ike: This will be handed to you by Old King Brady. He holds the P. & T. note. The note has to be paid. You have to pay it or I'll rip the lid off the man is the real maker of the note Hilda has probably tipped him off already."

"That's all" said Old King Brady. "Good-day, Mr. Nogatief."

MYSTERY AT LAUREL HILL

Old King Brady returned to his office late in the afternoon and found Harry and Alice waiting. Alice had returned to the stalled taxi while Harry shadowed Hilda to the house in Rapelyea place. He found that she was living there with an elderly man who passed as her father. But the part of the story that interested Old King Brady was that of "the man with the hole in his head."

"That must be Grohogan," he remarked. He called up St. Francis hospital and confirmed his suspicion. "I wonder if the boy could be in that house? I wish I knew. "I have a queer notion, that is, that Harry and I ought to shadow 18 Rapelyea place tonight."

So they turned up at 18 Rapelyea place at 9 o'clock that night, both carefully disguised. They had no more than placed themselves when a man with a big gray beard came out. An elderly man in his shirt-sleeves accompanied him to the door. As he stepped out, "Grab," said Harry.

At 10:30 Grab came out again, fully dressed. He had a hard, sinister face. First he went to a small furnishing store and emerged with a new suitcase. Then he went to other places and bought a hack saw with three extra blades, two screw-drivers, a box-opener, a hammer and a cold-chisel.

Grab frequently looked about and the Bradys were forced to keep under cover. Convinced at last that he was not being followed, Grab paused before an old cellar opening to a ruined house. He disappeared into the cellar and came back empty-handed. He then slowly retraced his steps. He went to the house of the man with a hole in his head, glanced at the house and went back to 18 Rapelyea pl

"Queer maneuvers," remarked Old King Brady as they returned to the stone shed. "I imagine Grohogan was up and the light in the window may have been a signal"

"Going to stop here, governor?" asked Harry.

"Let me see. At midnight I will go back to that house and watch while you remain here. If at 1 o'clock nothing has happened, I will return here." Just then a young man in a rough garb came jauntily along the street. "Look there!" exclaimed Harry. "Alice"

It was indeed Alice in male disguise. "She'll be company for you, anyway," said Old King Brady. "I am going now."

Old King Brady got there just in time to see a man and a boy striking off across lots. He determined to follow. They began to run and he lost sight of them in the woods for a minute. Suddenly he heard a noise as of somebody striking an iron. He kept on and came to an old tomb. The door was shut and locked. He decided it was the closing of this door he had heard. "What are you musing around here for?" he heard a hoarse voice demand, and received a terrible blow on the back of the head. Four desperate looking men were pressing close about him. Before he could speak he received a second blow which sent him senseless to the ground

Woman Sleuth Plays Big Part in the Story

Could Alexis have known how he was going to feel about the whole thing he would have run for his life when they got out of doors. Grohogan headed him straight for the woods, as we already know. The instant they were in the trees, the madman clutched his arm.

"Run, run for your life, Alexis! Russian spies are at our heels!" he breathed. "I feel it in the air."

The madman, who kept hold of him, ran him to the tomb, where he halted, produced a key, opened the door which was fastened by a spring lock, and pushing Alexis in front of him jumped in and slammed the door after them.

Alexis did not realize where he was. He had a horrible fear all at once that Grohogan had brought him here to kill him. "Where are we?" he gasped.

"At the gate of death," replied Grohogan, grimly. "You get the box with the contents intact.' He struck a match.

"This is a tomb?" gasped Alexis, glancing around.

"Yes. Your tomb and mine! Ha! Ha! Ha! I thought I wanted to come back to this world, but I'm tired of it." He drew a revolver and flourished it

Alexis looked around. In a niche at the back end of the tomb he saw the tin box which he remembered so well

"There you are, Alexis. You get in there and lie alongside your precious box. Obey or you die!" thundered the madman as the boy hesitated. Thoroughly alarmed, Alexis did as he was told.

Grohogan blew out the lantern Then the report of a revolver rang out. He could hear Grohogan stagering down the path next instant he fell, he groaned once and all was still.

"Dead, heavens! He has committed suicide." Alexis crawled out and dropped to the floor. He seized the box and without thinking of it made his way to the door. It was secured by a peculiar spring lock and he could not open it from in. There was not even a keyhole visible on this side.

Now the boy realized the boy that he was going to find himself locked in there until he starved to death. He beat on the door and shouted his ears. Before he could get another match out he fell in a dead faint.

How long he lay there he did not know, but when he came out of the faint he heard voices talking outside.

"Croak him, Plug! Croak him" one was saying.

"Aw, shut up, Lanky" came the reply. "I wanter read what's on his shield. Lemme see. Brady Detective Bureau—dat's what it says. This must be Old King Brady himself"

Alexis judged from more conversation that there must be at least four of these men.

Presently Plug remarked that he thought Old King Brady was dead. Alexis shuddered again thinking the old detective came out to look for him and lost his life in consequence?" he asked himself.

Someone then answered that he guessed the crazy man must have shot the boy first, all was so quiet over the tomb They started to look Old King Brady to the barn, and Alexis heard the gang go away presently he heard another voice—Ivan's. "It's just as I tell you, Mr Grab," he was saying. "You can take my word for it! He has locked himself in the tomb and liked killed himself and the boy, too."

"Well, and suppose he has," said Grab. "You know my idea has been all along to kill the boy. He is only in the way. All we want is to get the papers and sell them to Count Witsky's brothers." This cold-blooded statement drove away any thought Alexis may have had of making his presence known.

Finally Ivan said, "Come along. We can't stand here talking if we are going to break into the tomb. We have to get the tools." They went away for a few minutes, then returned and began working on the lock

Poor Alexis! He was sure that Grab would kill him as soon as the door was open and they found him. He decided to make a bold dash past the two men. The time came at last. The lock was sawed completely off Ivan came in first and Grab followed

"There! What did I tell you?" cried Ivan "There he lies—dead."

"And the box?"

"Not here. Look! There he goes!" For Alexis had slipped around the door and was off like the wind.

"Stop! Stop!" yelled Grab. "Stop or I'll shoot you!"

But then Alexis tripped and fell. The box flew out from under his arm. In an instant they were upon him. Alexis sprang to his feet and fled. His father was forgotten in his desire to save his own life.

As he ran there came another shot. He did not stop until he was far away. He was out in the open now, and he fell down under a tree completely exhausted. Here he remained until morning, no one coming near him

In the meantime Old King Brady had revived He found himself lying on the floor of the old barn. The four toughs were standing around talking. They had already been through his pockets and taken away what they could lay their hands on, among other things, his revolver. The old detective, however, had secret pockets and in one of these he had a spare revolver. This had not been disturbed. As he lay there he could hear sounds of hammering and the sawing of iron, which came later.

While all this was happening to Old King Brady, Alice and Harry had shadowed Ivan and Grab and they were standing in the edge of the woods waiting. So when Alexis dashed out they saw him.

Alexis had had plenty of time to think. He resolved to go back and see how matters stood at the tomb. He found some difficulty in locating it, but at length he got there The door stood open and two men were just coming out—one was Ivan and the other a policeman.

"Ye, officer," Ivan was saying in English. "He was just as crazy as he could be. I don't doubt but that he has thought these lots just to get the old tomb to kill himself in."

"That's all right, Mr. Dunwitz, that fine talk," said the officer. "But whoever sawed that there door in dat door will have to come along with me to the captain." Thereupon they went away.

The voice of Peggie came floating out of a window which framed her laughing face and her shock of tawny hair.

"Hello there! Is breakfast is brewing between you two so early in the morning? Who's game for a dip in the lake before breakfast?"

Maurice's hand went up.

"Get into Ken's bathing suit, then, and rustle a towel, and I'll run down."

After breakfast, Peggie's program for the day was to take Maurice up to the top of Swansea Peak for a bird-eye view of the Valley. They were to ride and lead a pack-horse with a lunch basket and paintboxes and easels, in case they felt inclined to sketch.

Before leaving, Maurice said good-bye to Skookum Bill, who would be on his way to Banff before they were likely to return.

They rode for miles and stopped on a ridge for lunch.

Immediately below them on a jutting promontory was a circle of stones.

"Has someone placed those there?" he asked. "Is that a sort of fairy?"

"Some say one thing, others another," she answered, more seriously now. "One old Indian told me that it marks the remains of a trap for eagles."

"Let's down and see."

At first she hesitated, but when she saw him scrambling down she followed. There was only one way down, and that was narrow, between two rocks. As soon as he reached the level ground he turned and found her just behind him. She could not escape him this time. He caught her in his arms and kissed her.

She resisted, but so faint-heartedly that he knew she was won.

"You dear, sweet eagle," he murmured, as her head sank on his breast. "At last—at last!"

After he had kissed her hair a dozen times, she held up her lips in final surrender Then shook herself free.

"Well," she sighed, "you've won. Let's sit down and talk it over quietly."

"That reminds me," he said, feeling in his pocket for the necklace with its forty-nine amethyst scarabs. "here is something Jacqueline gave me for you if ever we should reach the stage of wedding presents."

"How sweet of her!" Peggie exclaimed. "She has certainly been wonderful to me ever since we met. Sometimes I fear I did not give her due credit."

After a while she started to fix her the necklace.

"What do you think about Jacqueline?" he said. "Do you think she is in trouble?"

"Not so far," she answered, "otherwise another would have known. You may think us superstitious, but really there is something uncanny about mother's second veness to what is happening to her friends.

"Suppose we go together some time to her cabin. We can sketch on the way."

When they came back towards evening, they met Peggie's father at the gate. His face had a worried look, and Peggie at once took alarm.

"What's the matter, Dad?"

"Mother's upset. She has seen a vision. You'll find her inside."

Maurice hesitated about following Peggie in, but she motioned back to the door and beckoned to him. Mrs. MacLean was lying back in a rocking chair, her face gray and strained. Peggie was on her knees beside her, stroking her hands.

"It's about Jacqueline—Tell him, Mother—Maurice is her friend."

Mrs. MacLean spoke slowly, with a mournful, electrifying intensity

"And why should I not be telling him, if he is her friend? Was I not seeing before me as I was looking into the water of the well? It was her sorrow I was beholding. Sh. She is in great danger and the Bride-no-more. She will not be seeing anything herself in her crystal ball any more at all, but she will be having her long, long sleep.

"The figure of Donald MacLean appeared at the door

"Get blankets and food, Peggie, my girl. Jim Jones is driving over in the car to fetch us—we can make the mouth of the Canyon before dark and reach the cabin by noon tomorrow. He is bringing Mrs. Jones to keep Mother company."

"Maurice is coming with us, of course," said Peggie.

"Sure thing" We can pick up Skookum Bill at Macleod Meadows. He knows the trail up the Canyon better than anyone."

Up in her Eagle's Nest, Jacqueline had ample time to review her past years—forty-eight of them—who else would have believed so many?

In spite of the evil reputation that Kennedy had given to Black Louis, she was not afraid of him. She had her gun, and she had found a still more formidable weapon in his superstitious dread of her powers as a sorceress.

Fortunately Dominic was not always with them. She smiled to think of his exit. He was probably up north among Indians more amenable to his method.

What was it that had delayed the visit she had expected from Peggie MacLean? It must have been six weeks now since she had stayed at the MacLean's ranch, and she had left an invitation for Peggie to come up to the Eagle's Nest as soon as she came home.

She must talk to her about Maurice and make sure that these two did not drift apart.

She was playing with Diavolo, the husky, one morning waiting for the return of Louis who had gone after supplies, when suddenly she saw him bristle. Along the trail approaching the plateau on the edge of which the cabin was perched appeared three figures on horseback—Louis, Dominic and his Indian guide. Behind them followed three pack horses.

Through the telescope she watched them dismount, unsaddle their horses and unload the packs. Louis dragged up a pile of firewood while Dominic and the guide set up the tent—a big one. The three stood for awhile talking, after which Louis came alone to the cabin.

"Everything ready," she said "Better tell Dominic to come in."

"They will come soon," said Louis. "He does not wish to eat."

"Fasting, I suppose?"

"Yes," he answered.

Although the noon meal was ready enough, he took a chunk of log and threw it on the fire. Then he went to a chest in which odds and ends were stored and took out a piece of rope. Jacqueline turned to the table to remove the superfluous dishes.

Suddenly she felt her arms seized from behind in Louis's powerful grip, and was forced to her knees on the floor. In a minute, with astonishing ease, he had her roped so that she could not escape. He had twisted her arms behind her and fastened them to the leg of the table, then her ankles with the same leg of the table between them. Her involuntary attitude might have been that of one in prayer.

"Last night," she said as Louis edged toward the door. "I dreamed a dream. I saw your Nopeka, the Eagle, lying sick He had fed on poisoned meat and was dying in the snow. Over him there flew the Raven and perched on a branch above. Then the Raven swooped and pecked at the Eagle's head.

"The Eagle, your Nopeka, has lost its strength," she continued. "Tomorrow the Raven will pick out his eyes."

This witch was already throwing the spell of fear upon him. Making the sign of the Cross, he turned his back on her and ran. It was a distance of only ten paces between the door and the edge of the precipice three hundred feet high above the Canyon. For a moment Jacqueline thought he would fall over, but he stopped himself in time and turned to the left in the direction of the tipi

For four days now Dominic had fasted, and though his body was weak, his mind was fortified by the spiritual exaltation necessary for the devil-chasing ordeal that faced him.

That this woman Jacqueline was possessed by evil spirits he had no shadow of doubt.

This sorceress must be taken unawares and without chance of interference. Everything was ready for the ordeal—the water distilled from the horn of Kahoona, the mountain goat, and scented with sacred herbs in the ceremonial Bighorn, taken from a mountain ram. The praying board had been newly painted with pictures of animals, birds and insects hostile to the Kannawdzets, the conjuring stick of spruce wood had been carved and painted on the one side black, on the other side red, the sacrificial drum had been stretched with goatskin and covered with the emblems of Old-Man-in-the-Sky and Owl in vermillion from the clay of the mystic Paint Pots—he had washed with herbal water and with fleecy robe of mountain goatskin and the ceremonial cap of swan's down.

Louis had been sent to seize her suddenly from behind and to tie her up before she had time to summon to her aid any further spirits from the mountain tops. If he succeeded, the first and most hazardous ditch in the assault was won.

As Dominic prepared himself for the ordeal by humming in himself the sacred hymn of Old-Man-in-The-Sky, Louis came staggering towards him from the cabin. Dominic feared that his accomplice had failed—then thrilled at the message, "She is tied fast—she cannot resist."

With trembling hands, the fanatic devil-chaser put on the white goatskin robe and ceremonial cap Round his neck he hung his cross carved of spruce wood and a string of magic amulets. Then from its wrap of deerskin he took in his right hand the long conjuring stick, breast-high and tapering to its base. In his left hand he held the red medicine pipe, nearly as long.

At the same time Black Louis and Shaddy Best quickly donned each a feathered headdress. Dominic motioned to his Dene guide to bring the vessel of Bighorn, the sacrificial drum and the bird shaped rattle of carved wood, and in a slow, swaying dance they approached the cabin. Black Louis brought up the rear with the praying board and a bowl of vermillion paint. A halt was made at the door of the cabin, and at a sign from Dominic, the three squatted on the ground.

Jacqueline who could see them plainly through the doorway, was fascinated by Dominic's bearing.

Lighting the medicine pipe, Dominic gave three whiffs each to the sun, the sky, the earth and to the four winds, then passed the pipe to his Dene guide, Sunday Best followed suit, and passed it to Black Louis, who completed this propitiation of the kindly spirits. Then, half turning to the door through which Jacqueline could be seen watching them, Dominic said in a threatening voice:

"Know all those who hear that while we are smoking the bodies of our friends and relatives destroyed by witchcraft are being devoured by wolves and dogs, and their spirits are being enslaved by the Kannawdzets, evil dwarfs from the mountain tops."

This initial ceremony ended, the three rose to their feet and entered the cabin.

AUCTION BRIDGE

Contract Bridge

VALUATION and Bidding—South's holding exemplifies the minimum requirement for the original bid of a suit that does not contain a whole quick trick. This requirement takes into account that a suit may be headed by K J 10, K J, Q J 10, Q J, or possibly by Q 10 and be bid originally if compensated by sufficient side strength to bring the total quick trick value of the hand up to 2½.

Suits wholly lacking in quick tricks require at least three side quick tricks, which can be reduced to 2½ or possibly less if the suit is of greater length than five cards.

For example: Spades, J 10 x x x. Hearts, A x x x. Diamonds, A Q 10. Clubs, 5.

With the hand given at the beginning of this article, South bids one Diamond and West passes. North makes a forcing bid of two Spades, thus demanding a response by partner.

Lacking side strength sufficient for a forcing bid, North would have bid one Spade unless the suit were of sufficient length and strength to warrant a bid of four.

It should be noted that neither a one bid nor a bid of four would be construed as a forcing bid, as neither would indicate a further bid in the hand.

South, if positively assured that North's forcing bid of two Spades indicated a strong Spade suit, as well as a strong hand, would be justified in bidding four Spades at once, but inasmuch as he holds but two Spades and North has announced that he (North) holds a further bid in the hand South's response with his holding is three spades, to await North's further bid.

North, assured that South holds some Spade support, bids four Spades for game.

Auction Bridge

At Auction Bridge North would take out South's Diamond bid by a bid of one Spade which should be the contract

The Play

There is practically nothing to the play of the hand, as whether North makes four or five depends upon East's opening lead. With any other opening than Clubs five odd can be made

The "BAER" Facts -:- By Bugs Baer

THE Jones law is making some very distinguished bootleggers down in Washington.

Foreign legations and embassies are not affected by American laws.

A diplomat's house is his castle. The combination of both is a duplex speak-easy, sometimes known as an old ancestral chateau.

No revenue agent can lay his hand on an ambassador's distilled syrup. He cannot even lay two fingers on a glass.

But no American can transport the booze from the wharf to the legations. So the diplomats have been forced to drive their own liquor limousines.

Everything is legal about the transaction. Except the headache.

The ambassador drives down to the boat, fills up his hospitable tanks and then drives away with all the honors of war.

From now on we are going to be an international spy.

The good-will ambassador from Polynesia has a seven-passenger car which he is going to enlarge by 60 more seats.

The ambassador extraordinary from the New Hebrides has been busy translating code messages on labels.

The minister plenipotentiary from Homerun announces that he has full powers to declare war, make treaties and is also fully commissioned by his home government to send out invitations.

The attaches are working night and day getting ready for parties.

The Soviet legation has acquired a new international dignity and world-wide respect by stating that it will put in a cabaret.

Now we know why everybody wants to get into the diplomatic services.

The emolument is trivial. But the emulsion is exhilarating.

No diplomat can be arrested for anything he does in his home legation. The boys are taking dancing lessons to prevent themselves from staggering out of bounds.

If the minister from Turkeystan requires a good second-secretary to do the routine duties of territorial drinking we can recommend a few imperialistic bystanders.

Wages, no object. In fact, we will pay him.

Europe has finally brought the war home to us.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

BY TEMPLE MANNING

WITH its great International Exhibition scheduled to begin on May 15, Barcelona, metropolis of Spain and ancient capital of Catalonia, is preparing an elaborate and typically Latin welcome for tourists.

Twenty-two million dollars have been appropriated by the Government for the expenses of the occasion, and twelve million square feet of space in beautiful Montjuich Park, overlooking the city and the sea, have been laid out in magnificent gardens by the well-known landscape architect to the King of Spain, Nicholas Mo Rubio.

Luminous fountains will be among the striking features of the exposition grounds, and from preliminary reports one is led to believe that the use of fantastic colored lights and cascading water will achieve effects rivaling those at Versailles.

Barcelona always has held a peculiar fascination for travelers from the New World. Almost completely surrounded by hills, and stretching from the mountains to the sea, the city first impresses with its immensity. And it truly is a large city. Its population is close to a million and a quarter, and with the European type of construction—chiefly houses of but a single story—it spreads out over an area larger, perhaps, than any city in America.

Barcelona combines in pleasing synthesis glorious relics of a noble past and abundant evidence of a thoroughly modern present. It boasts one of the most up-to-date subway systems in Europe, and its streets are covered by hundreds of London busses and American taxis. But along with these modern means of transportation one discovers the ubiquitous donkey and mangy mules rubbing their sides against elegant motor cars.

LOVES OF STAGE BEAUTIES

By RUTH MORRIS

IT was quite by accident that Helena Modjeska, Poland's great actress, was led to the stage. She came of a fairly well-off and intellectual family living near Cracow, where she was born in 1840. Her father, a music teacher, well thought of in the community, saw that his daughter's education was not neglected and taught her in literature and arts.

These studies were continued later at a convent from which Helena graduated to marry Gustave Modrezejewski, 20 years her senior. By eliminating a few of the unpronounceables in his name, Modjeska arrived at the name which she used throughout her career.

Modjeska was tremendously stage struck. She had been taken to the Polish ballet when she was five years old, and had come home in such a fever of excitement that she hadn't slept for nights. From then on every expedition to the theater had been a joyous one, but it had never occurred to Helena to imagine herself in anything but the role of enraptured spectator.

Shortly after their marriage, the Modjeskas moved to a section of Austrian Poland, recently devastated by a disaster in the mines. To relieve the suffering of the stricken miners and their families, a benefit was arranged. Helena graciously consented to take part in this, thrilled, perhaps, at the stage appearance—but never for one moment thinking that this was to be the first step in a career that would bring international fame.

So great was Helena's success at this amateur performance that, with the aid of her husband, she started her own company, touring Poland in a brief repertoire. She gained for herself quite a reputation in Galicia, as a promising and beautiful young actress.

But though business arrangements were traveling along nicely, domestic affairs were not equally smooth, and the elderly Modrezejewski deserted his wife. Whereupon, at the age of 25, Helena returned with her company to Cracow and remained there for three years.

During an engagement in Posen, Modjeska (who had by this time become quite a national celebrity) was horribly annoyed at an uncomplimentary criticism that appeared about her in one of the papers. She invited its author to tea and, to her surprise, found him quite charming. The critic, Count Karl Bozenta Chlopowski was in turn equally charmed. If he had found shortcomings in the actress, he failed to do so in the woman—and at the end of a brief courting, asked her to marry him.

This was an ideal union. Both were interested, not only in the theater, but in the allied arts; both had culture and social grace and the ability to assemble about them interesting groups. Their salons in the various cities where they made their homes were to be made up of the great names of the day. Among their intimates were Padrewski, de Reszkes, Tennyson, Lowell, Alma-Tadema, Burne-Jones, Longfellow, Grant, Richard Gilder and Sherman. These men might have been drawn to the theater to witness the art of Modjeska, but it was her intellectuality, her charm and innate refinement that drew them to her home.

This social success, however, was to come later. It started in a small way at the home of the Chlopowskis in Bodina, where a small theatrical and literary coterie gathered about the delightful host and hostess, and continued when an engagement at the Imperial Theater in Warsaw enabled them to set up a home in that city.

Modjeska's success here was immediate, and might have continued indefinitely. But after a period of seven years, she became dissatisfied with the jealousies and constant dissension at the Imperial. She longed for the freedom and peace of a new country, and accordingly she and her husband and one or two friends set sail for America where, journeying westward, they hoped to establish a communistic farm in California.

This was a dismal failure. All the members of the group were untrained for labor, proven by the fact that they had a cow, which no one knew how to milk. They were too poor to return to Europe. And so it was natural that Modjeska should turn to her former profession to recoup the fortunes of her little band of adventurers.

Her first performance was in San Francisco under the management of John McCullough, who immediately brought her to New York, where success was meteoric. Her forte was the Shakespearian comedies.

Note—Aunt Bella is only too glad to answer questions from her readers, providing, of course, they are proper questions to put to a lady. Do not annoy Aunt Bella with inquiries concerning her private life as there are things she will not discuss with strangers.

Q.—Is the summer Tangier, or Red Bird (commonly known as the Red Cardinal), sometimes called the "Red Tangier"?
—WILBERT

A.—Yes. It is also called the Summer Tangier or Red Cardinal.

Q.—What part did Lillian Gish play in Colleen Moore's last picture?
—WILBERT

A.—Colleen Moore does not appear in Lillian Gish pictures.

(Wilbert—This is the third time you have asked this question. I am sick and tired of looking up the answer. Please send me your mother's telephone number.—Aunt Bella.)

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
I ought to sock you right smack on the nose!

THINK FOR YOURSELF

By LUCY LOWELL.

MANY lovely friendships are shattered before they ever begin by folks who try to do your thinking for you.

"I am sure you won't like that person," they will say to you. "I'm telling you this so you won't be disappointed. He's all right in some ways, but . . . well, I don't think you'll like him."

Which, of course, is another way of saying, "I don't like him, so you shouldn't like him either." And the really sad part of it is that whether you realize it or not, you are likely to be influenced by such a remark as this, vague though it may be, especially if it happens to be made by some one in whose judgment you have confidence.

Too many of us go about trying to influence our friends to think as we do, and too many of us are influenced by others to give up independent thought for their ready-made prejudices.

I know a young woman who for several years listened to bitter, biting criticisms of a person from a close friend. As it happened, she did not allow herself to be really influenced, since it seemed unreasonable to her that the person whom she knew slightly could be so everything one should not be as the friend insisted.

After about five years of this the young woman was brought into contact with the person, whom she found to be charming, sincere, high-principled and delightful.

She was interested enough to sift the matter and found in the end that the friend who had been so filled with prejudice and dislike had absorbed her ideas from another, a professional rival of the person!

This is a rather startling example of what undue influence may do. In some degree, however, it is always active and is a thing to be guarded against.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

Emily was visiting her maiden aunt, and rushing into the house, after playing out all day, exclaimed: "Oh, auntie! We've had a lovely time playing postman. We gave a letter to every one who went by!"

"Why—where did you get the letters, dearie?" inquired Auntie.

"Oh, we found 'em in your trunk in the attic, all tied up with a blue ribbon!"

ROXBURY GIRL NOMINATED FOR TYPICAL GIRL AWARD

SHE'S the daughter of the whole world—the Typical American Girl.

She emerged from a melting pot into which has been poured the best of half a dozen racial strains. Three centuries of American civilization have made her what she is—the pride of the entire earth.

Typically American in behavior, the girl for whom eighteen Hearst newspapers and Smart Set Magazine are searching may be an Anglo-Saxon type in appearance, or she may be Latin or Scandinavian.

We won't know until the Typical American Girl Quest is over, at the end of this month, and the judges have found the one who is to receive the $5000 award.

A National Committee of Judges appointed by Smart Set will make the final decision and make the award of $5000 in New York, at a date set by the publisher of Smart Set Magazine.

BASSO'S APPRECIATION

This committee is composed of Rosamond Pinchot Gaston, Vina Delmar, Jesse L. Lasky, John Golden, Guy Hopp, and Margaret Sangster, Editor of Smart Set, and a seventh member to be selected.

Nominations should be made at once for the coveted distinction of being designated "the Typical American Girl."

Meanwhile, read what a celebrated Russian has to say of the American Girl as he sees her. This is the opinion of Feodor Chaliapin, basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

"Everything that is fine and wonderful in a woman—that is what I have found in the typical American girl.

"But, alas! I speak only of the American girl as I have seen her from a distance—across the footlights.

"But the most important quality I would see in her is that she is made for motherhood. She can have no more important mission in life, to my mind.

HUB CANDIDATE

"Women—they think men admire them because of the happiness they give to men. But that is not so. It is because they are potential mothers that they are glorious and beautiful."

Mrs. Elizabeth Seigel of 110 Waumbeck st., Roxbury, has nominated her daughter, Miss Mildred Seigel, in the quest for the Typical American Girl. Mrs. Seigel writes:

"My 'Typical American Girl' is very blonde, has large, expressive dark brown eyes, with black eyelashes and gives rather a striking appearance. She is 5 feet 2 inches and weighs 115 lbs.

"She is a graduate of the High School of Practical Arts, Roxbury. She belongs to social clubs and is very popular with the young folks. She plays the piano, dances well, plays tennis in summer and goes tobogganing in winter."

ATLANTIC GIRL

From Wollaston, Mass., comes the nomination of Miss Marie Esanio of 31 West Squantum st., Atlantic, by Mrs. C. H. Putnam.

Mrs. Putnam says:

"I was reading Smart Set magazine, relating to the quest for the typical American girl. There is a girl I know who would be of the type you probably are looking for. Her appearance is excellent.

"She dances a great deal and loves all outdoor sports, such as skating, skiing, tobogganing and swimming. She is five feet five inches, weighs 129 pounds and has medium complexion."

MILKMEN TURN DOWN OFFER

At a conference with employes this afternoon, a group of big milk contractors in Greater Boston will be informed that the latter's compromise wage scale and working agreement has been voted down by members of the Milk Wagon Drivers and Creamery Workers Union.

The contract under which the men are now working expires on April 1, and through its wage-scale committee the men had sought a slight increase in wages and some concessions in working conditions. At the present time, the drivers who comprise the bulk of the organization are working on a commission basis.

Under the offer made by the dealers, the drivers are to accept a cut of the weekly drawing account from $38 to $35, it being pointed out that with the commission basis this would mean no curtailing of their monthly wages.

In the case of the chauffeurs, now earning from $35 to $38 per week, the new offer calls for a reduction of $2.50 a week, and the increasing of their work day from 8½ hours to nine hours. The creamery workers, or inside men, are asked to take a cut from $31 to $30 a week, and work a nine-hour day in place of the present eight-hour.

Plan Memorial to Harvard Professor

Friends, colleagues and former pupils of Prof. Archibald Cary Coolidge of Harvard, teacher, historian, diplomat and former director of the Harvard College Library, who died about a year ago, are planning to erect a memorial tablet in his honor.

The memorial, in the form of a bas relief of the famous Harvard professor, to be erected in the passageway of the Widener Library leading to his former office, will cost $6000, most of which has already been raised by the committee in charge. Small contributions especially are still needed, according to the committee, and checks for this purpose, made out to the Treasurer of Harvard College, and addressed to 50 State st., will be welcomed.

Pittsfield May Get $1,000,000 School

Pittsfield, March 22—Observers of city hall business construe the statement of Mayor Jay P. Barnes at the tax limit hearing to mean that the new high school to be erected on the Longfellow House site and adjacent properties will cost about $1,000,000.

Mayor Barnes stated that he had been told by the president of the State Senate and Theodore N. Waddell, director of accounts, that 10 percent of the bond issue would have to be paid in cash.

"This means that we will have to raise for the school this year in the tax levy $100,000, an impossibility with the present tax limit of 2½," the Mayor said.

Man Sentenced for Thefts From Woman

Judge Harold Williams in superior court sentenced Benjamin Feldman of the West End to nine months in the House of Correction. Feldman had previously pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with four counts of larceny from Bella Spotnis and one count of larceny from Rose Frank.

It was alleged that Feldman told the women he could straighten out their taxes and later took the money to pay them. When further notice for taxes were sent to the women an investigation was started that resulted in the arrest of Feldman. The indictment charged that he received $631 from Miss Spotnis and $43 from the other complainant.

CHICAGO BUYS NEW YORK GUNS

New York, March 22—Chicago's own factories apparently cannot keep up with racketeers' demands for high explosives. This was apparent when a suspicious postal clerk held up a package containing four bombs and a sawed-off shotgun thrown in for good measure. The package was mailed at the Grand Central Station and addressed to Chicago.

A clerk in the postoffice intercepted the package. It bore a return address in the Commodore Hotel, which, police said, proved to be fictitious.

News of the discovery became known, despite efforts of the police and postal inspectors to suppress it. They had planned to substitute a "dummy" for the package containing the explosives and then arrest the person or persons who called for it in Chicago.

WINS REVIEW IN LONG SUIT

For ten years Frederick J. Fawcett, Boston hide and leather broker, has had a suit against the Richmond Leather Co. pending in the courts of Virginia. Today he was notified that the supreme court of appeals of that State has agreed to review the case for the second time.

In 1919, Fawcett, a Boston broker, sued the company for alleged failure to deliver rawhide laces ordered by him during the war. He won judgment for $3905 in circuit court of Richmond. The judgment was later reversed by the appeal court and the case remanded for another trial. At the second trial there was a hung jury.

Upon the third trial of the case a verdict for $3905 was again given Fawcett. It was subject to a demurrer, which was sustained by the court. From this decision Fawcett took the case again to the appeal court, which has just awarded him another writ of error.

A Washday MIRACLE

"What a relief!"—said Priscilla. "When I came home from an errand on a rainy washday, the ironing was half done, thanks to my new gas laundry dryer."

THINK of the convenience of drying clothes right in the laundry—protected from rain, snow, dust and wind!

No more annoying delays because of bad weather. Fresh from the wringer, your clothes are hung in the laundry dryer. Automatically regulated gas heat makes them ready for ironing in a few minutes.

Gas-dried laundry is spotlessly clean, sweet-smelling and sterilized. Gas drying means quicker laundry for homes, hotels, restaurants, and institutions. It means easier washdays for you!

Visit your gas company for a special demonstration of gas laundry drying. While there, ask to see other gas appliances—for cooking, water heating, house heating, refrigeration, incineration, garage heating, fireplaces, store heating, etc.

A small down payment gives you any of these wonderful helps. Pay the balance on convenient terms.

Dry Clothes with Gas ..THE BETTER FUEL

Ask your gas company for free booklet, "Gas—The Servant of Mankind." It tells the romantic story of gas—how to select and care for gas appliances—and contains new ideas for housekeeping. Write, phone or call for your copy.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Our Navy Yard

Asks for No Special Favors But Wants Fair Play

Secretary Charles Francis Adams of the Navy Department, coming home to Massachusetts for the first time since he entered the Cabinet, might have brought a little more encouragement to the men of his home town Navy Yard.

The first five of the fifteen new cruisers recently voted by Congress will be laid down this year, three in Government and two in private yards. The cost of new construction over a three-year period will be all of $300,000,000.

Gossip had whispered that while the Boston Yard "might" get one of the new cruisers it was unlikely that it would get one of the first five.

Secretary Adams finds that there are drawbacks in the way of Boston getting any. The Yard would have to have "much additional equipment." There are "other objectionable features."

What, then? Well, the Boston Yard is "admirably adapted to destroyer work," and it is "probable that a great deal of repairing, rebuilding and overhauling" of these craft will be carried on there. At all events, the Secretary says, work enough to require the services of the PRESENT yard personnel will be provided.

Charlestown's PRESENT force of mechanics numbers only 1800 men. No so many months ago the Yard gave employment to 3000.

It seems to us that if New York, Philadelphia and perhaps one of the Pacific Coast yards are to get th's year's three Government-yard cruisers, the Yard at Charlestown, with its record for first-class workmanship, should constantly receive a generous share of the general work of the Navy.

We can very well understand that a gentleman of Mr. Adams' training and temperament will not feel inclined to play favorites among the Navy yards. His friends and neighbors will not ask him to. They have a right, however, to expect that he will see to it that the local Yard receives fair play. This neighborhood is not without its unemployment problem. A Navy Yard as busy as a bee-hive for the next few months would be a great help to Greater Boston.

Raw

If Massachusetts IS a "Doubtful" State, There's a Reason

On the petition of Mr. John J. Cummings, for the enactment of a law providing preliminary elections of candidates for Mayor and City Council in the city of Boston, the Committee on Cities of the Massachusetts Legislature recommends that the petitioner be given "leave to withdraw."

In other words, the air.

What does this mean?

It means that Senator Johnson of Worcester and Representatives Crockwell of Medford, Hutchinson of Lynn, Chase of New Bedford and MacLean of Lowell believe that while THEIR cities are entitled to a mayoralty primary, Boston is entitled to what we have seen.

There is no good reason why Boston's candidates for the mayoralty should not be made to take part in a primary election, the two top men to meet again on Election Day.

It seems plain that someone strong enough to do things at the State House, or to have things done for him there, prefers the present arrangement.

When is the Republican organization in Massachusetts going to learn that it is this sort of discrimination against the people of Boston that, in the larger contests, is making this an extremely "doubtful" State?

Women and Waste

Senator Smoot Must Have Been Suffering From Indigestion When He Made Criticism

Senator Smoot of Utah expresses alarm over the condition the country is falling into as a result of women's idleness and extravagance. Show me, he says, the woman who takes a personal interest in the preparation of food and is not afraid to dig in the dirt and I'll show you a woman who is happy. Much of the poverty, misery, drunkenness and disease, the Senator says, are due to badly cooked food. Americans eat more than any other people and the American garbage can is the largest on earth. If he had a dozen daughters and were able to give each $1,000,000, he would stipulate that she must make her own clothes, cook food properly for a family and be a superior housekeeper.

Senator Smoot must have been recalling the good old days and suffering from indigestion when he wrote that. Americans eat more—and better—food and select the choicest parts of foodstuffs because they can afford to and that is why the American garbage can is so big.

American women do not make their own clothes, because they can buy them already made cheaper. American wives are not kitchen drudges because their time and labor can be better expended.

American housewives have learned that prepared food can be purchased in many instances of better grade and more economically than it can be prepared at home, but they do take a personal interest in cooking.

American poverty, misery, drunkenness and crime are not connected with the kitchen. American wives are less extravagant than American husbands and waste less time than other wives of equal wealth. The woman who is happy digging in dirt is obsessed by the bliss of ignorance. Otherwise, Senator Smoot's statement may stand.

What a Line!

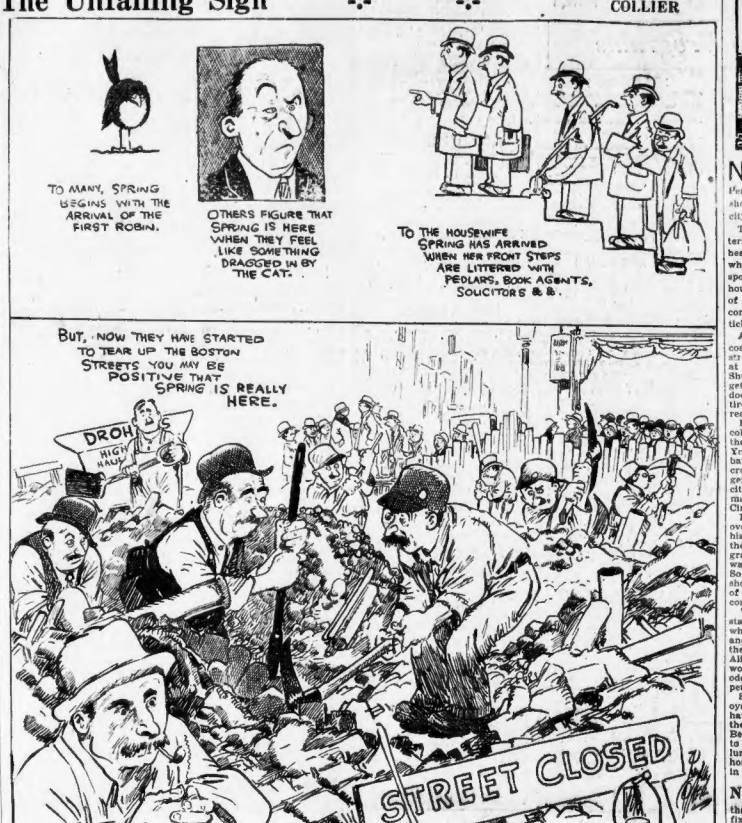
American girls have been toasted and hymned by foreign visitors until there has seemed to be nothing left unsaid, but surely this eulogy by E. A. Verpilleux, an English painter, deserves attention:

"The ensemble effect of the American girl is overwhelming. She is a thing of verve, grace, alertness, wholesomeness and charm. I would not have believed there were so many truly beautiful girls in the world as I have met here."

And, says the young woman who sent us the clipping from Palm Beach, isn't every word of it true? He doesn't know the half of it, dearie! Those words should be set to music!

The Unfailing Sign

By FRANKLIN COLLIER



New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 22—Thoughts while strolling: The fascinating foreign periodical counter at Brentano's. Gorgeous cushions for Persian cats. Irene Hayes, the Park ave. florist. Doll house shop. shops. H. I. Phillips, a New Haven, Ct., boy, who made good in the city. Phil Baker and Aileen Stanley.

That crowded co-operative cafeteria. Something alert about a red-headed man. Dr. Joseph Collins, who writes of love and things. And sports a goatee. Nothing makes a house so friendly as a window box of blooming flowers. What's become of Mencken's syndicated articles?

A chestnut vendor with velveteen coat and a big ring in his ear. A stray dog with wistful eyes sniffing at a cafe grating. Lee and Jacob Shubert. They say they never forget a sight. Neither do I, but what does it get me? No one seems entirely satisfied with a clipping bureau.

Bill Robinson, who is a celebrated colored tap dancer at 53. One of the most tragic figures in New York to me is James Stillman, the banker. Whatever became of milk crocks? Airplanes taking passengers for 20-minute rides over the city. The Von Hindenburg doorman Mike Kenna, ask anyone in Cincinnati.

Ladies with shiny nails and run-over shoes. Richard Bennett and his daughter Joan—appearing in the same play. Grantland Rice graying, too. Those fortresslike warehouses with a single entrance. So many are enticed into a magic shop, but few buy. What's become of the fighter with a name like uncorking a bottle. O, yes, Firpo.

The Warwick—where many movie stars stop. And the Buckingham, where May Allison lives. The Japanese fish store on Sixth ave. And the parrot that recites "Mandalay." Alison Smith. New York's only woman dramatic critic. Broadway's odd desolation—when traffic is suspended.

Spaghetti joints, raviogli dens, oyster bars, chili caverns—but no haunt like Jack's. What became of the Hippodrome's diving tank? Bench warmers beginning to drift to Bryant Park. Five hurrypup lunchrooms smack in a row. Back home they are making spring soap in big kettles.

NEW YORK hostesses are unable to set the dinner hour later than 7 o'clock. Those who have fixed the hour at 8 or 8:30 face a "strange interlude." The few who came had to be helped over the door sills and a messy evening resulted. Earlier cocktail parties among guests are responsible for the derelictions, and the later the dinner the fewer the guests, if any. One gentleman, touched by a continentalism, moved up his dinner to 9:30. Out of 40 guests, three, which included a deaf maiden aunt from Vermont, arrived. "The others," sighed the host, "either acquired unconsciousness or new ideas."

THE Italian quarter on the north fringe of Chinatown has resulted in mixed marriages between Italians and Chinese. And girls become what are known as "chinkwops"—wives of Chinese and moved into Chinatown. Those who oppose the domestic intermingling admit, however, the Chinaman is a good husband if he does not become an addict of the opium pipe. In such cases he usually makes an addict of his wife. There are, it is said, some 200 white wives of Chinese in the spidery streets running off Chatham sq. Once settled, they rarely leave the quarter, and a number are able to converse fluently in Chinese.

NOTHING—not even a camel smell—is left to remind New Yor . of old Madison Square Garden. A 34-story building of a life insurance company occupies the historic site. There is one room 50 feet below the surface where its wealth is cached. It has steel walls three feet thick and swinging doors at each end of the room weigh 3½ tons. Get a load of that on your jimmy, you bad, bad burglar.

ONE of those female precisionists who insist upon her legal rights was annoyed by a lady in front of her at the theater who did not remove a tight-fitting turban. "Please remove your hat!" she demanded testily. The lady did and a wild crop of frizzed hair ballooned out all over the place, almost completely obstructing the view. And two guessed only for the identity of the fellow in D-4 nearby who tittered behind his fan all evening.

AN art gallery proprietor had as a customer the other day the wife of a newly rich gentleman. She inquired to know if he had any ancestor pictures.

Jack Frost, Artist

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

QUOTE the following to give pleasure to those who love the aspects of nature in which she seems to have been playing the artist and handling her materials with a human thought in her big mind.

"I am enclosing you a sketch to show one of the most wonderful of Dame Nature's window paintings that I have ever seen. Sitting in our dining room, gazing at a window facing south that was nearly covered with frost, I saw this picture: A foreground of the prettiest fern leaves I have ever seen; back of them a forest of trees, seemingly pines, all fairly outlined as if made by an artist; beyond these two mountain peaks looking like part of a range, and above them fleecy clouds covering almost the whole of the upper part of the glass. But a space of six or eight square inches was uncovered, forming the only touch of color in the picture, for through this space the blue of the sky was beautifully visible. My family and I watched the picture with admiration until the heat of the room dissolved it. It was a marvelous piece of Jack Frost's handiwork.—Thomas McNally, Hanna, Ind.

Of all the natural phenomena which suggest purposed imitation I think that the frostwork on window panes should have first rank. Better than in the clouds or in the fireplace, there one may see, with hardly an effort of the imagination, the most realistic resemblances to animals and inanimate things, set forth with the perfection of a fine cameo or ivory miniature, and borrowing a sparkling splendor from the exquisite material of the frost.

I have occasionally seen works of Jack Frost which might vie in beauty with that described by Mr. McNally. Landscapes that bore the most complete resemblance to winter woods, with their trees banding under loads of snow and icicles; or snowy wildernesses of stunted, tangled trees like those of those that grow in the ravines on the slopes of Mt. Washington, intersected with a smooth, winding, frost-flowered path down which one almost expects to see a scared hare making jinglin leap toward safety.

Nature taught him by examples how to create mental perspective which, when the imagination is the judge, is just as good as the real perspective of three-dimensional space.

Perhaps it is only an extension of this that enables ultra-Einsteinians to see things in a fourth dimension! But then, can they prove that those things are any more real than the apparent roundness of a picture drawn with cunning shades and deceptively sloped lines on a flat sheet? Where are the boundaries of human gullibility, anyhow? I use the word in a respectful sense; credulity doesn't exactly hit my meaning. We speak very disrespectfully of the physical senses for deceiving us, but they are evidently not the only deceivers within our bailiwick.

But deceptions are also among the pleasures of life, and those that Jack Frost and his human imitators in art treat us to give us reason every day to think that Dr. Pangloss was not a hopeless prevaricator, but only a rather reckless exaggerator in pronouncing this to be the best of all possible worlds.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

AN hour ago the street was filled with people going to Lenten service. The forty days are upon us—forty days of contemplation of that mystery which reached its climax in golgotha's cross and the empty tomb.

For forty days church people pause and give themselves over to the thought of God. It is well for every life to have its Lenten pause.

Not necessarily a religious pause, but a period set aside for contemplation of the eternal mysteries.

Those mysteries are not the property of the church. They belong to the humblest and most ignorant man as well as the wisest and most proud. And we should remember them and set aside quiet moments in our lives for reverence and wonder.

We make such a poor business of living. We think only of what we shall eat and what we shall drink, where we shall sleep, whom we shall love, at what task we shall work. But these affairs are only the husks which enclose life—they are not life itself. If we live only on husks, we starve. Most of us do starve. Most of the eyes you meet are starving eyes—starving for that nourishment of Truth and Beauty and Power and Peace which we can only find in quiet moments alone with God.

Set aside a quiet moment for yourself—a Lenten period.

Consider the wonder of yourself—the Source from which you came—the earth you inhabit.

The story of the earth—that is YOUR story.

The story of God—that is YOUR story, too.

The story of Christ—that is most poignantly YOUR story.

You, too, must know your forty days if you would triumph over life and death.

You, too, much tread the Stations of the Cross, from Manger to the Tomb.

For you there waits, somewhere, a Cross on Calvary!

For you there dawns a Resurrection Morn!

Enter into the temple of yourself and think upon these things.

Thing of yourself not as a man, or a woman, a wife or husband, mother or father—but as a part of the Eternal Wonder.

Kneel before Truth—

Break the Bread and drink the Wine of Pain—

Light a candle to Beauty—

Then, for a little while, be still and rest in God—

And so come back to life, reborn, released from the dark tomb of your small, petty self.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

I HAVE been tiptoeing about with a flashlight recently looking for that much exploited creature the "can-opener wife," who has been inspiring all the humorists with pointed paragraphs.

And I can't FIND her! She simply doesn't exist—outside of the imagination and the comic strips. She is as mythical as the rolling pin wife!

I have not run across a single woman—or even a married one—who could not turn out a serious meal, with broiled steak, French fried potatoes and home-made biscuits as a basis. I have not met a single "delicatessen husband" who meekly munched canned baked beans and cold potato salad in place of food. It has been an awful shock!

All this flutter over the failings of the modern wife is apparently just a masculine FEAR-COMPLEX. Man has been in terror of the vacuum cleaner, the electric cooker, the patent dishwasher and all the ready-to-serve things that come in cans; and it has filled him with an appalling fear! Some day he may come in and NOT find a woman HUSHY!

And man's pet pleasure, his one grand passion, is to see a woman BUSY around the house!

Some day he may zigzag home from the office, only to find his wife lolling on a chaise lounge reading the latest best seller, instead of hustling and bustling about the place, getting things ready for his grand entry. Breathless, flushed and panting with excitement!

Not that the modern man really LIKES the heavy, gravy-soaked dinners with which his mother stuffed him. He doesn't. He hates to wear darned socks and patched underwear and cravats that have been cleaned with gasoline.

He secretly loathes a house that is so spick and span that he can't throw his hats around it and put his feet on the furniture and drop his ashes anywhere. He much prefers a dog tooth to "home" that is kept going like a boiler factory half the time in order that it may look like a mausoleum the other half.

It's just the IDEA of the thing! The mental picture of "the busy little woman" fussing and rushing around doling up the landscape for the coming of her royal lord and master—THAT'S what appeals to him!

It doesn't particularly matter what she's doing, just so she's DOING something—folding and unfolding his newspaper, pretending to dust the walls, or rearranging the flowers. If a woman should ever actually stop DOING things she might THINK—or something. That is why the average man spends half his time thinking up things for a woman to DO.

The modern wife who runs a house so easily and efficiently that you don't hear or see the domestic wheels go round just spoils the whole picture for him. He wants to smell the dinner cooking and hear it sizzling and see the family
